Roosevelt Renews Neutrality Law Plea

MAPS PARLEYS FOR STUDY OF LEGISLATION

President Says Developments in Europe Emphasize Need for Revisions.

CITES JAN. 4 MESSAGE

Studies Reports of Germany's Czechoslovakia Occupation But Withholds Comment.

WASHINGTON—President Roosevelt declared today that the United States needs new neutrality legislation, particularly in the light of European developments of the last few days.

The chief executive indicated that a legislative program looking to this end would be worked out in a series of conferences soon.

Pressed for information as to what course the program would take, Mr. Roosevelt suggested that his message of Jan. 4 be read for guidance.

Works Against Victims.

In that message the president said that the present American neutrality act sometimes worked out to the advantage of warmakers and to the disadvantage of those who are the victims of aggressors. He also said then that this country could find ways short of war, but stronger than words, to help stem aggression.

Before Mr. Roosevelt met with the press, he scanned the latest reports on Germany's occupation of Czechoslovakia with Under-Secretary of State Sumner Welles. He made no direct comment on them. However, he suggested that Welles in all probability would have something to say later in the day.

Franco Not Recognized.

Mr. Roosevelt said the government had made no move yet toward the recognition of the Franco regime in Spain. In response to queries, he pointed out that the Loyalist government still has an ambassador in Washington who is recognized as the ambassador of the government in Spain—or whatever is left of it. He mentioned that the Loyalists still control a great many thousands of square miles of territory.

1-Cent UCC Check Fails To Arouse Much Enthusiasm

LORAIN — (AP) — Frank Vass, factory laborer, couldn't work up much enthusiasm over his first unemployment compensation check. It gave him just enough to mail a postcard—one cent.

John F. Stehle, acting manager of the Lorain unemployment compensation office, said Vass' average weekly wage was computed at $20.50.

The first week that Vass was eligible for compensation he earned $20.48, two cents less than his average. Under state law, he was eligible for compensation amounting to 50 per cent of the difference between his average earnings and the amount earned after qualifying for compensation, or 50 per cent of two cents.

MICHIGAN GETS NEW EXECUTIVE

Dickinson Takes Oath While in Sickbed as Heart Attack Takes Gov. Fitzgerald.

(By United Press)

LANSING, Mich. — (AP) — The mantle of the late Gov. Frank D. Fitzgerald descended today on Lieut. Gov. Lurin D. Dickinson, who will be 80 years old on April 15.

Dickinson—like his predecessor, a Republican—automatically succeeded to the governorship of Michigan when a heart attack ended the career of the 54-year-old Fitzgerald last night.

Fitzgerald rose in a quarter of a century from an unimportant clerkship in the state's service to be elected governor twice. He began his second two-year term last Jan. 1.

The administration of Frank Murphy, now United States attorney general, was sandwiched between Fitzgerald's two terms. Murphy, a Democrat, defeated Fitzgerald for re-election at the end of the Republican's first term, and in turn lost to Fitzgerald when

HUNT 'BADMAN'

Posse Trailing Slayer of Two Wyoming Officers.

POWELL, Wyo.—(AP)—A riflewise posse of Wyoming and Montana officers gathered today to track down a raw meat eating, sharp-shooting game poacher who shot and killed two Park county officers after kidnaping a deputy sheriff last night.

Coroner Ray Easton of Park county said Earl Durand, 26, fired three fatal shots at Undersheriff D. M. Baker and Town Marshal Charles E. Lewis of Powell.

The fugitive, who sometimes lets his hair grow wildly long, is able to forage alone in the hills for weeks, "living on the raw meat of the game he kills," said J. M. Klindt of Powell.

Game Warden Boyd Bennion, who arrested Durand hiding behind a rock Wednesday, said Durand was carrying a slab of raw beef and explained he hadn't broiled it because "I didn't have time and it's good raw, anyway."

RECOVER BODY

JURY DEBATES DRIVER'S FATE IN CAR DEATH

Verdict Expected Today in Manslaughter Trial of Victim's Son.

TEST BRINGS ARGUMENT

Defense Counsel and Doctor Clash on Definition in Drinking Testimony.

(By Staff Correspondent)

ASHLAND—A jury in common pleas court was expected to report early this afternoon in the trial of Charles E. Stoops, 55, of Mifflin, accused of second degree manslaughter in the death of his father, William Stoops, in a traffic crash last Dec. 13.

The case went to the jury about 11 a. m. today following a charge delivered by Judge H. E. Culbertson.

"Ashland Test" Used.

Witnesses for the state attempted to prove yesterday by the "Ashland Test" for intoxication that the younger Stoops had consumed the equivalent of 12.79 ounces of 100-proof whisky within three hours prior to the accident.

The "Ashland test" consists of an analysis of body fluids for alcoholic content. It has been used in other court cases here and physicians contend it is an accurate method of determining the amount of alcohol that has been consumed within a specific period.

Atty. J. L. Mason, counsel for Stoops, and Dr. H. M. Gunn, who submitted the result of the test, engaged in a heated argument over the definition of a centimeter during the hearing yesterday, when Dr. Dunn allegedly failed to define the unit of measurement.

Attacking the "Ashland Test" as a means of determining the degree of intoxication, Mason said Dr. Gunn "had no business testifying in court" if he couldn't tell what a cubic centimeter is.

Admitted Drinking Beer.

Under cross-questioning, Stoops admitted he had had "a couple of bottles of beer" in Mansfield before starting back to Mifflin with his father. He denied, however, that he was drunk at any time during the day of the accident.

The fatal crash occurred on route 30 near Mifflin while Stoops and his father were enroute home. Stoops said the front wheels on his car locked, causing the machine to turn over in a ditch.

State patrolmen and Ashland county officers who investigated the mishap testified yesterday that Stoops appeared intoxicated following the crash.

RECEIPTS LOWER ON INCOME TAX

Revenue For First 15 Days Of Month 25 Per Cent Off.

WASHINGTON — (AP) — The treasury disclosed today income tax collections in the first 15 days of March were about 25 per cent below the corresponding days last year.

If this percentage held up, the treasury's March income tax loss would be much less than the $300,000,000 indicated by the president's January budget. However, treasury officials said taxpayers paid up a little earlier this year than they did last, and no estimate of the month could be made until the actual returns are in.

The Finger Points!

After Czechoslovakia, what next? The world will have to wait Hitler's own answer, but observers point significantly to Europe's map. With Czech nation safely under his domination, and Russia ready to fight for the Ukraine, Hitler is said to be casting eyes on Memel where Nazi agitation has already started.

$28,000 Park Beautifying Program to Open In April

WPA Notifies Park Commission Rehabilitation to Get Under Way as Soon as Weather Permits.

Mansfield's WPA park improvement program calling for the expenditure of approximately $28,000, largely federal funds, to beautify city parks, will get under way sometime next month, H. G. Brunner, chairman of the board of park commissioners, said today.

Bunner added that WPA officials in Columbus had assured him the project which was approved last year, would be started as soon as the weather permits.

"I believe that we will be able to have a full crew of men employed and the project well under way by the middle of next month," Brunner said.

Provides Jobs for 80.

The program calls for the rehabilitation of the parks and includes the cleaning up and beautifying unsightly spots, building stone ramps and walks, and installing equipment to make the parks practical for outdoor recreation centers.

The project designed to furnish employment for 80 WPA workers for a period of four months is to be financed by a $22,000 federal grant and $6,000 supplied by the city through the issuance of general bonds approved by council last year.

WEST SETS TRAP

'Nazi Official' Trailed in Hunt for Suave Swindler.

SAN BERNARDINO, Cal.—(U.P.)—Law enforcement agencies blocked all roads leading to Mexico today in an attempt to trap Dr. Otto Benjamin Leo Ritter, suave self-styled Nazi finance ministry attache, described by his "secretary" and alleged accomplice as an international swindler with multi-million dollar bank deposits in New York and elsewhere.

He was sought on two warrants, one issued by the government charging immigration irregularities, the other sent here by New Jersey authorities charging him with a swindle.

CHINESE IN DEATH ROW

'DARK HORSE' FOR SUPREME COURT?

Capital Anxious, Judge Allen Seen As Possibility.

WASHINTON —(AP)— President Roosevelt's delay in filling the supreme court vacancy created speculation on Capitol Hill today that a "dark horse" candidate might be named to succeed Justice Louis Brandies, retired.

Some senators often taken into the president's confidence expressed surprise at the delay and professed to be in the dark as to developments.

There was much speculation in senatorial circles over reports that the president might be considering promotion of Circuit Judge Florence Allen of Cleveland. She was born in Utah and thus might satisfy the demands of some senators for western representation.

WOMEN SLUGGED

One Fatally Injured, Another Hurt By Assailant in Marion.

MARION—(AP)—Police expressed belief today that Mrs. Libby Smith, 79, fatally injured when she ran into the side of an automobile last night, was trying to escaped from a man who 10 minutes before had slugged Mrs. Sarah Adams, 65, with a heavy instrument.

Mrs. Smith died today before police could question her.

Record Class of 60 to Receive Final Citizen Papers March 28

Citizenship and the right to vote had been won today by 60 foreign-born residents of Mansfield and Richland county.

Representing 13 nationalities, the group of new citizens is the largest ever naturalized in the county at one time. Seventy-two applicants went before Judge C. H. Huston in common pleas court yesterday in the final test for citizenship, but 12 of them failed to answer the requirements.

Naturalization papers will be presented to the successful applicants by Clerk of Courts Fred R. Zellner at a reception March 28 in the common pleas courtroom at the courthouse. Patriotic organizations in the city will sponsor the entertainment.

Little dramas were enacted in the courtroom as the applicants, many of whom speak broken English, appeared before Judge Huston to prove they knew enough about the country of their adoption to entitle them to citizenship.

One native of Poland who had lived in the United States for 37 years failed to pass because he couldn't tell the judge how laws in Mansfield and the nation are made.

He knew that "Mr. Roosevelt" is president, but he couldn't name the mayor of Mansfield or tell how the city's government functions.

A man who came to the city 14 years ago from Macedonia was refused citizenship because he

COMBINING OF WATER, SEWER ISSUES URGED

Shultz Proposes Placing Two Programs Before Voters as One Project.

PUTS PLAN UP TO COUNCIL

Would Delay Setting Up Bond Figure Until Needs of Both Systems Are Decided.

A plan to combine the much discussed water and sewer improvement proposals into one issue to be submitted to the voters at the August primaries, was offered today by Second Ward Councilman C. N. Shultz, chairman of council's water committee.

Shultz said he would ask council to consider placing the combined issues on the ballot as soon as it could be definitely decided how much money is necessary to rehabilitate both systems.

Know Water Costs.

"We know full well what ills must be corrected in the water distribution system from a survey we have," Shultz said, "but we haven't had a survey yet on the sanitary sewer system to determine what those improvements will cost."

He pointed out that council already has provided for the employment of a consulting engineer to conduct the sewer survey and that a June 1 deadline has been set for completion of the job.

It is also known that councilmen are toying with the idea of including a relief issue along with the water and sewer bonds as a rider, believing sentiment strong enough on the two proposals to carry the relief issue that was turned down by voters last fall.

Legality in Question.

Shultz, however, expressed some doubt as to whether these issues could be combined on one ballot. He said he had not talked to the city solicitor about the legality of such procedure.

City Solicitor Marion D. Ward, jr., refused to comment on the legality of the procedure today. He said city officials had not asked him for an opinion.

Shultz said his meeting with C. L. VanDerau, president of the Chamber of Commerce, to discuss the water problem and the exact amount of funds necessary to carry out the rehabilitation project had been postponed but that they planned to confer this afternoon.

VanDerau in an address to council Tuesday night submitted the chamber's recommendation for a $600,000 bond issue to finance city-wide improvements in the water system.

SPAN WORK SET

Bowman Bridge to Be Started April 10; 50 to Get Jobs.

Construction of a new $11,000 bridge over Touby's run on Bowman street is scheduled to start April 10 with approximately 50 men employed on the project, County Engineer Howard C. Sword said today.

The city and county will contribute about $7,500 as the sponsors' share of the project which will be under WPA supervision.

The county will pay the major part of the cost, or approximately $6,000, with the city's $1,500 contribution financing the construction of approaches to the bridge and the paving over the structure.

The bridge which will replace a structure condemned as unsafe several years ago, will require about three months to build, the county engineer estimated. Most of the men who will be employed on the project will be shifted from a WPA project on the Bowman street road north of the city.

Asks Diplomat For 'Report' On Hitler's Moves

France Expected To Follow Suit As Daladier Seeks Additional Power To Meet New Nazi Threat After Seizure of 'Protectorates.'

BULLETIN

ROME—(AP)—United States Ambassador William Phillips today sought an indication of official Italian reaction to German seizure of most of Czechoslovakia and Italy's intentions.

BULLETIN

VIENNA—(AP)—Adolf Hitler arrived at Vienna at 5 p. m. (11 a. m., EST) today after a two-day journey through his new protectorate of Bohemia and Moravia. A special train brought him from Brunn, Moravia.

(By United Press)

LONDON—Great Britain took the lead in democracy's "stop Hitler" drive today by recalling her ambassador from Germany to report on the Nazi "march to the east" through central Europe.

With the swift expansion of Nazi-Fascist power alarming every European capital, the government of Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain, following the example of the United States, ordered Sir Nevile Henderson, its ambassador at Berlin, to return to London. It was believed likely that Hitler also would recall his ambassador, Dr. Herbert V. Dirksen, for a "report."

Diplomatic circles believed France would later take similar action, although authoritative sources in Paris were uncertain of the next move there.

Great Britain's action was viewed as a rebuke to the Nazi destruction of Czechoslovakia and seizure of Czechia and Slovakia as protectorates.

Sir John Simon, chancellor of the exchequer, had disclosed earlier that the withdrawal was under consideration.

The French cabinet of Premier Edouard Daladier asked parliament for dictatorial powers to meet the new threat created by Nazi seizure of Bohemia, Moravia and Slovakia and by growing expectations that Hitler would now back his totalitarian partner, Premier Benito Mussolini of Italy, in a long-awaited move against France in the Mediterranean.

In Poland, in Rumania and in Jugoslavia the governments of Europe's little powers were in almost constant consultation in an effort to find further safeguards against another Nazi blow that would endanger their own frontiers.

Even in Hungary, which got Hitler's vague blessing for its military annexation of Carpatho-Ukraine, the government leaders and the big land-owners watched with mounting alarm as the Nazis carried their crusade against Jews, Communists and other political or racial foes into the Czechoslovak "protectorates" — where 10,000 persons were said to have been arrested by secret police in Bohemia alone.

The full military power of the Nazis was brandished in central Europe as Hitler, who remained only one day in hostile Prague, marched toward the east to the German-dominated city of Brno to receive a warm greeting. Nazi airplanes combed the skies over the 34,000 square miles which the fuehrer carved out of Czechoslovakia and German soldiers advanced through Slovakia to the Carpatho-Ukraine frontier — only

ROME: Duce's Newspapers Hint It's Time For Colony Demands

(By United Press)

ROME—All indications today were that Premier Benito Mussolini was almost ready to make his long-awaited colonial demands on France.

Controlled newspapers, praising the conquest of Czechoslovakia by Germany, all intimated that this was the opportune moment for the Italian half of the Rome-Berlin axis to strike. They described the fate of Czechoslovakia as another blow that had weakened the democracies, Great Britain and France, and strengthened the totalitarian countries.

The secretary of the Fascist party announced that Mussolini would address an open air meeting of Fascists, war veterans, German Nazis and Spanish Falangists in Mussolini forum March 26, and it was reported in authoritative quarters that he would discuss Italy's "natural aspirations." The speech will be at a celebration of the 20th anniversary of the founding of the Fascist combat corps.

Popolo Di Roma, which usually expresses the official view, said: "For four years the powers forming the axis have won an uninterrupted series of military and diplomatic victories—Ethiopia, Rhineland, Austria, Sudetenland, Spain and Czechoslovakia. Through these victories they have guaranteed themselves some key positions of vital importance. It would be a mistake to believe that the democracies retain their potential war power.

"While it is true that French and British territories are intact, the balance of power has been changed. Each of the foregoing victories has made the power axis so much stronger and weakened the democracies by the same proportion."

PRAGUE: Nazis Make Many Arrests; Suicides Continue

(By United Press)

PRAGUE—The anti-Jewish campaign gained momentum today in Bohemia, Moravia and Slovakia, with border riots reported and 10,000 Nazi "enemies" believed arrested in this city alone.

Thousands of Jews were hiding with friends or outside Prague, awaiting the opening of the border, when they will try to flee from the country. Many feared arrest as soon as they reached the border.

Arrests of Jews and other "enemies" of the Nazis continued in Prague. More suicides were reported.

Riots occurred at many frontier posts, where Jews, Czechs and others sought to escape.

The Gestapo, or German secret police, seized a number of Prague residents who had tried to leave the country. Three hundred Jews who tried to leave by way of Maehrisch-Ostrau to the north were halted.

Two hundred wealthy Jews who had arranged to emigrate to Santo Domingo by providing funds for an equal number of poor Jews to accompany them were prevented from leaving.

The tempo of the anti-Jewish campaign increased in Bratislava, Slovakia. Hlinka guards and German Nazi vigilantes were taking over Jewish-owned automobiles and trucks which probably will be confiscated eventually, as was done in Austria shortly after anschluss.

Many Jews in Bratislava attempted to cross the Danube into Hungary after Hlinka guards, vigi-

Incidentally she was here helping Mrs. Giffin while Mr. Giffin was recuperating from an appendectomy. . . . His friends will be glad to know that Mr. Giffin was up and about for the first time in more than eight weeks yesterday.

ACTIVITY GIRL: Elizabeth Miller (daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Miller, 137 Hammond avenue) is pretty busy these days at Baldwin-Wallace college, Berea. She's a junior and has just been elected chairman of the executive committee of Gamma Sigma, one of the large social sororities on the college campus. . . . In addition, Elizabeth holds the important position of treasurer of the B.-W. Women's Co-operative house—this organization is run completely by the girls living in the house (and it is considered an honor on the campus for a girl to be permitted to live in the "Co-op" house. . . . But that's not all—Elizabeth is also a member of the Education club, Y. W. C. A., Women's league, Social Science club, Youth Forum and the Women's Athletic association. . . . But life isn't all extra-curricular activities for Elizabeth either, for because of her scholastic achievements, she has been able to work out two college majors instead of the usual one—they are history and sociology. . . . Elizabeth is planning to take up social service work or teaching after her graduation.

THERE will be a lot of week-end visitors in the city for the Chi Sigma St. Patrick benefit dance tomorrow evening. . . . Genieve Diesem and Helen Becker are driving down from Ann Arbor, Mich., today to spend the week-end. Genieve (who was formerly a nurse in the public health department here) and Helen (who has been supervisor of the private pavilion at Mansfield General hospital) are taking post-graduate courses in the school of nursing at the University of Michigan this semester. . . . Betty Creger of Canton will be here to visit with Janet (Ogborn) and Bill Upson—Janet and Betty were roommates when they attended Bowling Green college. . . . And Russell Hammond will be here visiting with his cousin, Jane Cunningham—Gen Neiman is coming up with him—they're both from Canton, too.

And speaking of Chi Sigma sorority—don't be surprised into thinking it's a new fad if you see a number of girls sporting white stocking caps and carrying bright colored Easter baskets this next week—it's only that these are probation days for the pledges of the sorority . . . and the active members are having some fun (?) with them!

SOME old acquaintances will be renewed tomorrow afternoon when old friends get together for a tea honoring Mrs. C. B. McCarthy. Mrs. Warren Fort, Lucille Lindsey and Mary Lucille Bushey are entertaining at the Fort home on Highland avenue . . . and one of the unusual features of the affair is that all of the guests worked together during the Public Health Demonstrations (Blue Ribbon day parades, in case you've forgotten) from about 1922 until 1926. The hostesses are all employed in the public health department now, and Mrs. McCarthy (who was formerly Mary Hill) is now affiliated with the Visiting Nurses association. Kay Frances Cleave (one of the girls' former co-workers) is planning to motor here from Harrisburg, Pa., for the tea.

Another Mansfield college student—Lionel Culp—was honored last week when he was elected president of the junior class at Heidelberg college in Tiffin. . . . FROM MY NOTEBOOK: It must be quite a thrill to win a free telephone call—especially when you're nearly 3,000 miles from home. . . . And that's just what Jim Clark did Wednesday afternoon. . . . He and four other young Mansfielders (Bill McClurg, Dave Kohler, Bill Majoy and Felix Horne) are out in San Francisco now working at the Westinghouse exhibit at the Golden Gate exposition there. . . . It seems that every afternoon the person with the lucky ticket wins a free phone call to any city in the United States at the Bell Telephone exhibit—and Jim received one Wednesday—to say nothing of Bill McClurg, who has already won three such calls. . . . Need we mention that both boys called Mansfield?

Tygers Bow Out of Cage Tourney With Poor Exhibition

Lose to Akron Cagers, 35 to 18

Mansfield Basketeers Held to Six Points In First Three Periods In Columbus Elimination.

By OSCAR RUHL, News-Journal Sports Editor.

COACH RUSS MURPHY and his boys, the Tygers, were merely "interested spectators" today as the Ohio interscholastic basketball tournament continued in Columbus.

Mansfield's high school representatives bowed out of the elimination late yesterday afternoon when they suffered their most humiliating defeat of several seasons.

Akron North, which was not rated among the favorites, toppled the Men of Murphy, 38 to 18, in what was the most listless game on the entire opening tournament bill.

The Tygers' exhibition was their poorest of the season, and there was no question about the outcome of the game after the second period got under way.

Zone Baffles Tygers.

Unable to break through the Vikings' zone defense, the Tygers, apparently jittery, were helpless, and did not show any semblance of their real selves until the final period. Then it was too late to do anything about winning the ball game.

Their defensive play was also ragged, and the North quintet broke through for numerous set-up shots.

The Tygers were held to a new all-time low in scoring in the first three periods when they were limited to exactly six points. They scored two points in each of the first three quarters.

The biggest fault of the Tygers was their inability to handle the ball. They lost the ball on pass interceptions and fumbles on all but eight drives up the floor in the first half. Not counting a couple of feeble attempts to bat in rebounds, the Tygers got only nine cracks at the bucket in the first two periods.

Jack Dugger was the only Tyger to play his usually good game, and he alone was not capable of supplying enough points to turn back the Vikings.

Dugger accounted for 12 out of the 18 points garnered by the Tygers. He accumulated all of the Mansfield points in the first half, and registered every basket made by the Tygers except one.

The only other Tyger to register from the floor was Jake Lyons, who caged a miraculous shot from the center of the huge court in the coliseum in the final minute.

The Tygers played their usual slow and deliberate game, but they were unable to push through to the basket, and the decision was definitely lost when they started to throw from in front of the defense to break up the zone barrier.

The first period ended with both clubs being credited with two points. North stepped into an early lead on a pair of free throws by Baughman, and Dugger tied it up in the last minute when he dribbled in to score. The only lead held by the Tygers came in the first minute of the second quarter when Dugger supplied two free throws to put his team ahead, 4 to 2.

Baughman almost immediately knotted the score by counting on a rebound, and then the Vikings didn't stop scoring until they had registered 21 straight points, believe it or not.

Trail 18 to 4 at Half.

Mansfield did not obtain another point in the second period after Dugger counted twice from the foul line, the half ending with the Tygers trailing by an 18 to 4 margin.

North extended its advantage to 23 to 4 before Dugger scored on a short shot midway in the third frame, and Murphy's men did not tally again until the fourth stanza when Dick Rudolph added a pair of points from the charity stripe.

Kudo, Hart Head Card At Armory

Masked Marvel Faces Reynolds in Semi-Final Bout on Mat Bill Tonight.

KIMON KUDO, oriental contender for Billy Weidner's world light-heavyweight championship, will rule favorite tonight over Frankie Hart, Holland-born Canadian. The two standout lighties are carded for action in the main event of the Quality Club's weekly mat offering in the Armory, and they will wrestle for two falls, with a 90-minute time limit.

Another top-spot of the menu will be the Masked Marvel's tangle with Davey Reynolds of Cedar Rapids, Ia. The veiled matman has offered to give any wrestler, amateur or professional, a hundred dollars if the rival can win two successive pin falls. Mat critics are agreed that the masked individual is a great defensive wrestler, but they believe that Reynolds, a nephew of former welterweight champ Jack Reynolds, is capable of performing the trick.

It will be Reynold's first appearance locally and he is the owner of the best record that can be boasted among the younger light-heavies. Not since Frankie Talabar has a matman come into the midwest with as great a list of victories as the one boasted by this dark-haired Adonis. He will wrestle the Marvel in an attempt to score the required two falls.

Indian Gordon Arquette, returning to the scene of some of his best matches, will attempt to climb back into the front rank when he opposes clever Sammy Vangler of Wheeling, W. Va. in the opener. They will wrestle for one fall, 30-minute limit, starting at 8:30.

Await Arrival of New Player

Reds Buy Werber From A's With Outlay of $25,000.

TAMPA, Fla.—(U.P.)—The Cincinnati Reds wasted little time in signing their new third baseman, Billy Werber, who will report to training camp tomorrow. Werber, a holdout, was purchased from the Philadelphia Athletics for approximately $25,000 yesterday on the condition he sign, be physically fit and report to camp by March 27. Werber agreed to leave his College Heights, Md., home Saturday. The Reds play the Detroit Tigers today.

Northwestern Ohio Teams Fare Badly In Ohio Schoolboy Meet

By FRITZ HOWELL

COLUMBUS — (AP) — Sixteen teams, eight in Class A and eight in Class B, were poised for quarter-final games today in Ohio's annual high school basketball championship tourney, after a spectacular set of first round games which found 12 of the winners roaring over an unfamiliar course at a point-a-minute clip or better.

The largest first-day crowd in the tourney's history, 12,034, crowded the Ohio State university gymnasium and the state fair grounds coliseum Thursday for the opening contests of the big classic, and the fans were treated to some real thrills.

Only One Survivor.

Outstanding feature of the curtain raisers was the elimination of the entire contingent of four Class A teams from the northwestern district, Findlay, Mansfield, Toledo Devilbiss and Bryan, and three of that section's four Class B teams. Only Sandusky St. Mary's, 1936 Class B state champ, remained from the eight northwestern Ohio starters.

Dominating Class A after the first round firing were the southwestern and northeastern districts, the first area getting all three its delegates through the initial games, and the latter placing four of its five. Only Bridgeport, half of the eastern sector's delegation, remained to contest the Class A laurels with the two big districts. Bexley, the central district's lone representative, and Portsmouth, only delegate from southeastern Ohio, fell by the wayside, the Portsmouth crew bowing to Dayton Fairview, 45-32, after enjoying a 16 to 9 edge at the end of the first quarter. Other losers were New Philadelphia, last year's runner-up to Newark for the title, and Akron Buchtel, lone casualty from the northeast section.

The Class A games were rough and tumble contests in most cases, a total of 192 personal and two technical fouls being called in the eight tilts. The fouls called for 237 free throws, of which 123 were converted into points. Ten players were ejected on personals.

Akron Buchtel fouled its way among the also-rans by commiting 20 miscues. Bridgeport converting 15 into points. The teams tied from the field with 11 field goals each, but the hefty free throw total gave Bridgeport a 37 to 26 victory.

The individual stars put on a spree of their own, with Herbert and Richard Shrider of Glenford offering a brother act in Class B that was a "wow." Herb scored 24 points and Dick came through with 13, which just tied the entire efforts of the Amanda team. None of the other Glenford boys got a field goal, but single free throws by Clark, Noyes and Danison gave Glenford a 40 to 37 victory.

E. Caudill of Green township, which ran its string to 30 straight victories, scored 21 points in the 53 to 40 win over Dunkirk, the only count to go over the half-century mark, while Ling of Sandusky St. Mary's and Galbraith of Denison came through with 16 each in other Class B performances.

Wins Scoring Honors.

In Class A the scoring laurels went to Al Holzhauer, diminutive Dayton Fairview forward, who scored eight fielders for 16 points, one more than his center, Ken Huddleston. Kouski, Bridgeport center, also scored 15, while Bell and Kanney of Toledo Devilbiss counted 13 each with losing teams to tie Nagg of Akron Garfield. Dugger of Mansfield, who scored 12 in a 35-18 loss, counted the first eight made by his team, which was behind 27 to 6 as the last quarter started.

The individual hero, however, was John Paul, forward of the Cincinnati Roger Bacon club. Roger Bacon was a point behind with five seconds to go, when John flipped a free throw into the hoop to send the game into an extra session. In the first 10 seconds of the "sudden death" overtime, John dropped a fielder to beat Toledo Devilbiss 29 to 27.

Sports, Dairys Play at Willard

Yuncker Team Opens Bid for Class A Honors Tonight.

The Yuncker Sports City Class A league champions, invade Willard today to face their initial test in the Class A division of the Fifth Annual basketball tournament.

Whether the Sports will fare better than they did last year when they lost out in an opening round contest, is a question, but Manager Jimmy Breres has added Noel Morgan in an effort to bolster the team's scoring power. The Yuncker outfit is scheduled to go into action against the Elyria General Industries at 7:15 p. m.

Still a little groggy from the 70-36 whipping suffered at the hands of "Chuck" Chuckovits and his ex-Toledo university team at Senior high Wednesday night, the Sports will have additional strength at the pivot post with Tom Farrell in the lineup.

The Page Dairys, who defeated the Willard Square Deal Dairys in an opening round tilt Wednesday night, will return to meet the Tiffin Huber Motors in a second round tussle tonight.

WILLARD TOURNEY SCORES

'Kentucky Derby' for Racing Ponies Planned

By FRANK WOODLAND

COLUMBUS—While the ballyho is focused on Colonel Matt J. Winn's Kentucky Derby, inside reports are to the effect that something new in horse racing—a Kentucky Derby in miniature—will be presented next summer to the mass populace interested in the various equine activities, providing plans which are in the making materialize, as expected by sponsors of the idea.

Someone with vision has discovered the colorful possibilities of pony racing—a condensed version of thoroughbred races. Designed for youth, however, the sport will not go commercial—amateur jockeys without exception. It is called a contest on the comparative speed and endurance of midget horses— better known as the American type of running pony.

The plan, according to an authoritative source, will be National in scope. States are divided into districts, winners of the district eliminations taking part in state championships. For the first year most of the races will be half mile distance, catch weights. There are eight divisions or classes, one for each additional inch in height, from 48 to include 55 inches.

Scheduled are eight state and nine national championships. A handicap classification according to each inch in height, will be in effect when the winners of the eight national championships meet for the grand championship. Liberal awards are to be given the winners and runners-up. A majority of state championships will be held at state fairs.

Miniature horse racing is not new in the states. For many years pony racing has interspersed harness racing at fairs scattered throughout the country. While there always seemed great interest in the sport, nothing much has ever been done to develop the many possibilities of the little animals.

The fair at Hilliards has featured pony racing for a long time, over 60 participating in the events last year. Ponies are plentiful around Ohio. On the closing day of the 1938 Franklin county exposition, a pony derby was programmed. It had eight starters, each between 51 and 52 inches in height, the riders in at catch weights. Polly Ann won it in a blanket finish, stepping four furlongs in 56 seconds, said to be a state record.

The fairs at Richwood and Plain City have pony events on their racing program. Mansfield, Eaton, Urbana, Troy, Zanesville, London, Fremont, Mt. Vernon, Bucyrus, Ashland, Bellefontaine, Lebanon, Marysville, Van Wert, Dayton and other Ohio fairs list the equine midgets.

Middle Part of Infield Still Worries Indians

By GEORGE KIRKSEY

NEW ORLEANS—(U.P.)—When Oscar Vitt goes to bed at night his fervent prayer to the baseball gods is, "Please give me a second baseman and a shortstop." If the diamond god should answer Vitt's prayer you won't have to break up the Yankees. The Cleveland Indians will take care of them.

The Indians had the Yanks rocking on their heels last year as late as July, but sprang a leak, or to be more explicit, came apart at the seams and came in third, 13 games behind the Gotham Goliaths.

Hope springs eternal in the bosom of the Indians every spring. This year is no exception. They have six major league outfielders (including holdout Earl Averill), a pitching corps that need not play second fiddle even to the Yankees, and a sound catching staff but the middle part of their infield is strictly something the cat brought home.

12 Infielders In Camp.

Cleveland has 12 infielders in camp, more than any other American league club. Vitt hopes to fashion some sort of a second base combination from this array. His only hope seems to be to make a deal for a classy second baseman or shortstop or otherwise wind up with Lyn Lary, a stubborn holdout, and Odell Hale around the keystone sack. Right now they have Skeeter Webb, a pint-sized shortstop, and Oscar Grimes, son of the old-time Cubs' first baseman, cavorting around second. They can match or surpass Lary and Hale afield but can't hit with them.

Vitt frankly admits the Indians will never win the pennant until they get a second base combination, and they haven't had one since Joe Sewell and Bill Wambsganss helped Tris Speaker's club roll home to the flag and world's championship 19 years ago.

If you can overlook the heart of the infield the Indians are definitely championship class. They are well fortified at first with Hal Trosky and at third with Ken Keltner, one of last year's prize rookies who drove in 113 runs.

Their outfield packs dynamite. Jeff Heath, with a .343 average, and Ben Chapman from the Red Sox, with a .340 mark, were second and third to Champion Jimmy Jimmy Foxx. Averill hit .330. Then there's Bruce Campbell, Roy Weatherly and Julius Solters, who was a big flop last season but is back in great shape and battling to win a regular berth. If Averill doesn't come to terms he may be used in a trade to get an infielder. The best guess at the regular outfield is Heath, Weatherly and Chapman, with Averill going away.

Head Mound Staff.

The two pitching mainstays will be Bob Feller and Mel Harder, each 17-game winners last year. Feller, with added poise and confidence, may graduate to the league's No. 1 pitcher. Johnny Allen, apparently fully recovered from an operation on his elbow, will give the Indians three potential 20-game winners if complications don't set in.

Behind this trio, the Indians have Johnny Humphries, who won nine games last year and is ticketed for a big year; Willis Hudlin, still holding out, and two good-looking rookies from New Orleans, Joe Dobson and Tom Drake. Bill Zuber and Al Milnar are two others who may figure in the pitching alignment.

Frankie Pytlak and Rollie Hemsley, who has taken the pledge again, to behave himself, will share the catching.

AVERILL ON WAY

EVERETT, Wash.—(INS)—Earl Averill, the Cleveland Indians holdout outfielder, was en route to Chicago today after saying he had not yet signed a contract with the Indians.

Young Glover Conquers Jinx, Wins Crown

Carbetta Retains Flyweight Title in Marion.

Beauford Glover, slugging welterweight, who has been handicapped by training injuries which have kept him idle in recent tournaments, seems to have conquered the "jinx."

The young Friendly House mittster captured the annual Marion Golden Gloves welterweight title in the Marion tournament last night, and the style in which he performed left little to be desired.

Wins On Knockout.

He met Dan Matthews, 135, of Marion in the finals and Matthews hit the canvas in the second round before the hard-punching Mansfielder.

Glover, who has been working out under Trainer Bus Doehla, chalked up his third straight knockout victory in Marion. It was the first tourney he has participated in since the Junior Association of Commerce A. A. U. card at the Y. M. C. A. last year.

He was one of the two settlement youngsters to carry off top honors in the annual affair.

The others are Paul Carbetta, who successfully defended his flyweight title by decisioning Paul Mollenkopf in the finals. Both lads had to score four wine to annex their titles.

Jimmy Jones, 175, also of the Friendly House, dropped a decision to Maurice Shingler, 175, of Ada, in the finals.

The McKinley brothers, Melvin and Ernie, of Ashland, who have appeared on numerous Mansfield amateur shows, copped the crowns in their respective divisions.

Melvin, 118, won on a decision over Sam Walker, 118, of Crestline, and Ernie, 126, scored a technical knockout over Harold Richardson, 126, in the opening round.

Win Other Titles.

Other youths who came through with flying colors last night were Billy Scott, 147, of Marion, who won a decision over Louis Findlay, 142, of Bellefontaine; Phil Ganni, 160, Crestline, who decisioned Merle Kleinecht, 160, of Galion; and Franklin Seifient, 180, Marion, who won on a technical knockout in 45 seconds over Bob Hardle, 180, Marion.

Cleveland Keglers Move Into Lead

CLEVELAND— (AP) —Keglers from the host city dominated the five-man team division of the American Bowling Congress' championship tournament today.

A quintet representing the F. Ziehm company of Cleveland took first place last night with a 2,924 total of games of 883, 1,052 and 989. The Simmons company No. 1, of Elizabeth, N. J., was shoved into second place with 2,876.

The following Cleveland teams grabbed third, fourth and fifth positions last night: Little Brown Jug 2,842, Novak's Tavern 2,802, and St. Clair 98th Recreation 2,800.

Feldman Easy For Armstrong

Lasts Less Than Round With Champion Henry.

ST. LOUIS —(U.P.)— Those betting boys who thought Lew Feldman would last three rounds against Henry Armstrong paid off today.

Armstrong, St. Louis born, who had to go to California to make a living as a fighter, put the light and welterweight titles on the line last night, and a capacity crowd of 10,000 saw Feldman counted out after two minutes and 12 seconds of the first round.

Weighing 134 pounds, one less than his opponent, Armstrong tore in with both arms flailing at the bell. A right caught Lew on the jaw, and he was on the floor for a nine count before the bout was a minute old. Henry never let up.

When Lew got up from the first knockdown, Henry drove him into a neutral corner. He pounded him unmercifully on the ropes. Feldman grasped the ropes and tried to hold on for a few more seconds and Henry stepped back. Then as Lew left the protection of the ropes, Armstrong charged in again and never stopped throwing punches until a stiff right on the button dropped the Brooklyn boy for the full count.

Tygers Bow Out of Cage Tourney With Poor Exhibition

Lose to Akron Cagers, 35 to 18

Mansfield Basketeers Held to Six Points In First Three Periods In Columbus Elimination.

By OSCAR RUHL, News-Journal Sports Editor.

COACH RUSS MURPHY and his boys, the Tygers, were merely "interested spectators" today as the Ohio interscholastic basketball tournament continued in Columbus.

Mansfield's high school representatives bowed out of the elimination late yesterday afternoon when they suffered their most humiliating defeat of several seasons.

Akron North, which was not rated among the favorites, toppled the Men of Murphy, 38 to 18, in what was the most listless game on the entire opening tournament bill.

The Tygers' exhibition was their poorest of the season, and there was no question about the outcome of the game after the second period got under way.

Zone Baffles Tygers.

Unable to break through the Vikings' zone defense, the Tygers, apparently jittery, were helpless, and did not show any semblance of their real selves until the final period. Then it was too late to do anything about winning the ball game.

Their defensive play was also ragged, and the North quintet broke through for numerous set-up shots.

The Tygers were held to a new all-time low in scoring in the first three periods when they were limited to exactly six points. They scored two points in each of the first three quarters.

The biggest fault of the Tygers was their inability to handle the ball. They lost the ball on pass interceptions and fumbles on all but eight drives up the floor in the first half. Not counting a couple of feeble attempts to bat in rebounds, the Tygers got only nine cracks at the bucket in the first two periods.

Jack Dugger was the only Tyger to play his usually good game, and he alone was not capable of supplying enough points to turn back the Vikings.

Dugger accounted for 12 out of the 18 points garnered by the Tygers. He accumulated all of the Mansfield points in the first half, and registered every basket made by the Tygers except one.

The only other Tyger to register from the floor was Jake Lyons, who caged a miraculous shot from the center of the huge court in the coliseum in the final minute.

The Tygers played their usual slow and deliberate game, but they were unable to push through to the basket, and the decision was definitely lost when they started to throw from in front of the defense to break up the zone barrier.

The first period ended with both clubs being credited with two points. North stepped into an early lead on a pair of free throws by Baughman, and Dugger tied it up in the last minute when he dribbled in to score. The only lead held by the Tygers came in the first minute of the second quarter when Dugger supplied two free throws to put his team ahead, 4 to 2.

Baughman almost immediately knotted the score by counting on a rebound, and then the Vikings didn't stop scoring until they had registered 21 straight points, believe it or not.

Trail 18 to 4 at Half.

Mansfield did not obtain another point in the second period after Dugger counted twice from the foul line, the half ending with the Tygers trailing by an 18 to 4 margin.

North extended its advantage to 23 to 4 before Dugger scored on a short shot midway in the third frame, and Murphy's men did not tally again until the fourth stanza when Dick Rudolph added a pair of points from the charity stripe.

Masked Marvel Faces Reynolds in Semi-Final Bout on Mat Bill Tonight.

KIMON KUDO, oriental contender for Billy Weidner's world light-heavyweight championship, will rule favorite tonight over Frankie Hart, Holland-born Canadian. The two standout lighties are carded for action in the main event of the Quality Club's weekly mat offering in the Armory, and they will wrestle for two falls, with a 90-minute time limit.

Another top-spot of the menu will be the Masked Marvel's tangle with Davey Reynolds of Cedar Rapids, Ia. The veiled matman has offered to give any wrestler, amateur or professional, a hundred dollars if the rival can win two successive pin falls. Mat critics are agreed that the masked individual is a great defensive wrestler, but they believe that Reynolds, a nephew of former welterweight champ Jack Reynolds, is capable of performing the trick.

It will be Reynold's first appearance locally and he is the owner of the best record that can be boasted among the younger lightheavies. Not since Frankie Talabar has a matman come into the midwest with as great a list of victories as the one boasted by this dark-haired Adonis. He will wrestle the Marvel in an attempt to score the required two falls.

Indian Gordon Arquette, returning to the scene of some of his best matches, will attempt to climb back into the front rank when he opposes clever Sammy Vangler of Wheeling, W. Va. in the opener. They will wrestle for one fall, 30-minute limit, starting at 8:30.

Await Arrival of New Player

TAMPA, Fla.—(U.P.)—The Cincinnati Reds wasted little time in signing their new third baseman, Billy Werber, who will report to training camp tomorrow. Werber, a holdout, was purchased from the Philadelphia Athletics for approximately $25,000 yesterday on the condition he sign, be physically fit and report to camp by March 27. Werber agreed to leave his College Heights, Md., home Saturday. The Reds play the Detroit Tigers today.

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla.—(U.P.)—The New York Yankees entertain the Boston Bees in today's exhibition game, hoping for their fourth victory in six starts. The Yanks beat Cincinnati 1-0 yesterday. Pitcher Wes Ferrell gave the Reds their only hit but clouted a home run in the fourth for the game's only tally. Monte Pearson and Atley Donald worked hitless three-inning stretches.

Northwestern Ohio Teams Fare Badly In Ohio Schoolboy Meet

By FRITZ HOWELL

COLUMBUS — (AP) — Sixteen teams, eight in Class A and eight in Class B, were poised for quarter-final games today in Ohio's annual high school basketball championship tourney, after a spectacular set of first round games which found 12 of the winners roaring over an unfamiliar course at a point-a-minute clip or better.

The largest first-day crowd in the tourney's history, 12,034, crowded the Ohio State university gymnasium and the state fair grounds coliseum Thursday for the opening contests of the big classic, and the fans were treated to some real thrills.

Only One Survivor.

Outstanding feature of the curtain raisers was the elimination of the entire contingent of four Class A teams from the northwestern district, Findlay, Mansfield, Toledo Devilbiss and Bryan, and three of that section's four Class B teams. Only Sandusky St. Mary's, 1936 Class B state champ, remained from the eight northwestern Ohio starters.

Dominating Class A after the first round firing were the southwestern and northeastern districts, the first area getting all three its delegates through the initial games, and the latter placing four of its five. Only Bridgeport, half of the eastern sector's delegation, remained to contest the Class A laurels with the two big districts. Bexley, the central district's lone representative, and Portsmouth, only delegate from southeastern Ohio, fell by the wayside, the Portsmouth crew bowing to Dayton Fairview, 45-32, after enjoying a 16 to 9 edge at the end of the first quarter. Other losers were New Philadelphia, last year's runner-up to Newark for the title, and Akron Buchtel, lone casualty from the northeast section.

The Class A games were rough and tumble contests in most cases, a total of 192 personal and two technical fouls being called in the eight tilts. The fouls called for 237 free throws, of which 123 were converted into points. Ten players were ejected on personals.

Akron Buchtel fouled its way among the also-rans by commiting 20 miscues. Bridgeport converting 15 into points. The teams tied from the field with 11 field goals each, but the hefty free throw total gave Bridgeport a 37 to 26 victory.

The individual stars put on a spree of their own, with Herbert and Richard Shrider of Glenford offering a brother act in Class B that was a "wow." Herb scored 24 points and Dick came through with 13, which just tied the entire efforts of the Amanda team. None of the other Glenford boys got a field goal, but single free throws by Clark, Noyes and Danison gave Glenford a 40 to 37 victory.

E. Caudill of Green township, which ran its string to 30 straight victories, scored 21 points in the 53 to 40 win over Dunkirk, the only count to go over the half-century mark, while Ling of Sandusky St. Mary's and Galbraith of Denison came through with 16 each in other Class B performances.

Wins Scoring Honors.

In Class A the scoring laurels went to Al Holzhauer, diminutive Dayton Fairview forward, who scored eight fielders for 16 points, one more than his center, Ken Huddleston. Kouski, Bridgeport center, also scored 15, while Bell and Kanney of Toledo Devilbiss counted 13 each with losing teams to tie Nagg of Akron Garfield. Dugger of Mansfield, who scored 12 in a 35-18 loss, counted the first eight made by his team, which was behind 27 to 6 as the last quarter started.

The individual hero, however, was John Paul, forward of the Cincinnati Roger Bacon club. Roger Bacon was a point behind with five seconds to go, when John flipped a free throw into the hoop to send the game into an extra session. In the first 10 seconds of the "sudden death" overtime, John dropped a fielder to beat Toledo Devilbiss 29 to 27.

Sports, Dairys Play at Willard

Yuncker Team Opens Bid for Class A Honors Tonight.

The Yuncker Sports City Class A league champions, invade Willard today to face their initial test in the Class A division of the Fifth Annual basketball tournament.

Whether the Sports will fare better than they did last year when they lost out in an opening round contest, is a question, but Manager Jimmy Breres has added Noel Morgan in an effort to bolster the team's scoring power. The Yuncker outfit is scheduled to go into action against the Elyria General Industries at 7:15 p. m.

Still a little groggy from the 70-36 whipping suffered at the hands of "Chuck" Chuckovits and his ex-Toledo university team at Senior high Wednesday night, the Sports will have additional strength at the pivot post with Tom Farrell in the lineup.

The Page Dairys, who defeated the Willard Square Deal Dairys in an opening round tilt Wednesday night, will return to meet the Tiffin Huber Motors in a second round tussle tonight.

WILLARD TOURNEY SCORES

Results of first round play for the second night of the fifth annual independent basketball tournament being held in Willard:

Brought together for the first time in Cleveland as the piece de resistance of the annual Muny inter-city tournament over the week-end of March 4, the Waterloo Wonders sprung one of the years' prize upsets when it handed the famous Celts a 47-39 trouncing.

'Kentucky Derby' for Racing Ponies Planned

By FRANK WOODLAND

COLUMBUS—While the ballyho is focused on Colonel Matt J. Winn's Kentucky Derby, inside reports are to the effect that something new in horse racing—a Kentucky Derby in miniature—will be presented next summer to the mass populace interested in the various equine activities, providing plans which are in the making materialize, as expected by sponsors of the idea.

Someone with vision has discovered the colorful possibilities of pony racing—a condensed version of thoroughbred races. Designed for youth, however, the sport will not go commercial—amateur jockeys without exception. It is called a contest on the comparative speed and endurance of midget horses—better known as the American type of running pony.

The plan, according to an authoritative source, will be National in scope. States are divided into districts, winners of the district eliminations taking part in state championships. For the first year most of the races will be half mile distance, catch weights. There are eight divisions or classees, one for each additional inch in height, from 48 to include 55 inches.

Scheduled are eight state and nine national championships. A handicap classification according to each inch in height, will be in effect when the winners of the eight national championships meet for the grand championship. Liberal awards are to be given the winners and runners-up. A majority of state championships will be held at state fairs.

Miniature horse racing is not new in the states. For many years pony racing has interspersed harness racing at fairs scattered throughout the country. While there always seemed great interest in the sport, nothing much has ever been done to develop the many possibilities of the little animals.

The fair at Hilliards has featured pony racing for a long time, over 60 participating in the events last year. Ponies are plentiful around Ohio. On the closing day of the 1938 Franklin county exposition, a pony derby was programmed. It had eight starters, each between 51 and 52 inches in height, the riders in at catch weights. Polly Ann won it in a blanket finish, stepping four furlongs in 56 seconds, said to be a state record.

The fairs at Richwood and Plain City have pony events on their racing program. Mansfield, Eaton, Urbana, Troy, Zanesville, London, Fremont, Mt. Vernon, Bucyrus, Ashland, Bellefontaine, Lebanon, Marysville, Van Wert, Dayton and other Ohio fairs list the equine midgets.

Middle Part of Infield Still Worries Indians

By GEORGE KIRKSEY

NEW ORLEANS—(U.P.)—When Oscar Vitt goes to bed at night his fervent prayer to the baseball gods is, "Please give me a second baseman and a shortstop." If the diamond god should answer Vitt's prayer you won't have to break up the Yankees. The Cleveland Indians will take care of them.

The Indians had the Yanks rocking on their heels last year as late as July, but sprang a leak, or to be more explicit, came apart at the seams and came in third, 13 games behind the Gotham Goliaths.

Hope springs eternal in the bosom of the Indians every spring. This year is no exception. They have six major league outfielders (including holdout Earl Averill), a pitching corps that need not play second fiddle even to the Yankees, and a sound catching staff but the middle part of their infield is strictly something the cat brought home.

12 Infielders In Camp.

Cleveland has 12 infielders in camp, more than any other American league club. Vitt hopes to fashion some sort of a second base combination from this array. His only hope seems to be to make a deal for a classy second baseman or shortstop or otherwise wind up with Lyn Lary, a stubborn holdout, and Odell Hale around the keystone sack. Right now they have Skeeter Webb, a pint-sized shortstop, and Oscar Grimes, son of the old-time Cubs' first baseman, cavorting around second. They can match or surpass Lary and Hale afield but can't hit with them.

Vitt frankly admits the Indians will never win the pennant until they get a second base combination, and they haven't had one since Joe Sewell and Bill Wambsganss helped Tris Speaker's club roll home to the flag and world's championship 19 years ago.

If you can overlook the heart of the infield the Indians are definitely championship class. They are well fortified at first with Hal Trosky and at third with Ken Keltner, one of last year's prize rookies who drove in 113 runs.

Their outfield packs dynamite. Jeff Heath, with a .343 average, and Ben Chapman from the Red Sox, with a .340 mark, were second and third to Champion Jimmy Jimmy Foxx. Averill hit .330. Then there's Bruce Campbell, Roy Weatherly and Julius Solters, who was a big flop last season but is back in great shape and battling to win a regular berth. If Averill doesn't come to terms he may be used in a trade to get an infielder. The best guess at the regular outfield is Heath, Weatherly and Chapman, with Averill going away.

Head Mound Staff.

The two pitching mainstays will be Bob Feller and Mel Harder, each 17-game winners last year. Feller, with added poise and confidence, may graduate to the league's No. 1 pitcher. Johnny Allen, apparently fully recovered from an operation on his elbow, will give the Indians three potential 20-game winners if complications don't set in.

Behind this trio, the Indians have Johnny Humphries, who won nine games last year and is ticketed for a big year; Willis Hudlin, still holding out, and two good-looking rookies from New Orleans, Joe Dobson and Tom Drake. Bill Zuber and Al Milnar are two others who may figure in the pitching alignment.

Frankie Pytlak and Rollie Hemsley, who has taken the pledge again, to behave himself, will share the catching.

Young Glover Conquers Jinx, Wins Crown

Carbetta Retains Flyweight Title in Marion.

Beauford Glover, slugging welterweight, who has been handicapped by training injuries which have kept him idle in recent tournaments, seems to have conquered the "jinx."

The young Friendly House mittster captured the annual Marion Golden Gloves welterweight title in the Marion tournament last night, and the style in which he performed left little to be desired.

Wins On Knockout.

He met Dan Matthews, 135, of Marion in the finals and Matthews hit the canvas in the second round before the hard-punching Mansfielder.

Glover, who has been working out under Trainer Bus Doehla, chalked up his third straight knockout victory in Marion. It was the first tourney he has participated in since the Junior Association of Commerce A. A. U. card at the Y. M. C. A. last year.

He was one of the two settlement youngsters to carry off top honors in the annual affair.

The others are Paul Carbetta, who successfully defended his flyweight title by decisioning Paul Mollenkopf in the finals. Both lads had to score four wine to annex their titles.

Jimmy Jones, 175, also of the Friendly House, dropped a decision to Maurice Shingler, 175, of Ada, in the finals.

The McKinley brothers, Melvin and Ernie, of Ashland, who have appeared on numerous Mansfield amateur shows, copped the crowns in their respective divisions.

Melvin, 118, won on a decision over Sam Walker, 118, of Crestline, and Ernie, 126, scored a technical knockout over Harold Richardson, 126, in the opening round.

Win Other Titles.

Other youths who came through with flying colors last night were Billy Scott, 147, of Marion, who won a decision over Louis Findlay, 142, of Bellefontaine; Phil Ganni, 160, Crestline, who decisioned Merle Kleinecht, 160, of Galion; and Franklin Seifient, 180, Marion, who won on a technical knockout in 45 seconds over Bob Hardie, 180, Marion.

Cleveland Keglers Move Into Lead

CLEVELAND— (AP) —Keglers from the host city dominated the five-man team division of the American Bowling Congress' championship tournament today.

A quintet representing the F. Ziehm company of Cleveland took first place last night with a 2,924 total of games of 883, 1,052 and 989. The Simmons company No. 1, of Elizabeth, N. J., was shoved into second place with 2,876.

The following Cleveland teams grabbed third, fourth and fifth positions last night: Little Brown Jug 2,842, Novak's Tavern 2,802, and St. Clair 98th Recreation 2,800.

Feldman Easy For Armstrong

Lasts Less Than Round With Champion Henry.

ST. LOUIS —(U.P.)— Those betting boys who thought Lew Feldman would last three rounds against Henry Armstrong paid off today.

Armstrong, St. Louis born, who had to go to California to make a living as a fighter, put the light and welterweight titles on the line last night, and a capacity crowd of 10,000 saw Feldman counted out after two minutes and 12 seconds of the first round.

Weighing 134 pounds, one less than his opponent, Armstrong tore in with both arms flailing at the bell. A right caught Lew on the jaw, and he was on the floor for a nine count before the bout was a minute old. Henry never let up.

When Lew got up from the first knockdown, Henry drove him into a neutral corner. He pounded him unmercifully on the ropes. Feldman grasped the ropes and tried to hold on for a few more seconds and Henry stepped back. Then as Lew left the protection of the ropes, Armstrong charged in again and never stopped throwing punches until a stiff right on the button dropped the Brooklyn boy for the full count.

Villanova is scheduled to meet Brown in the first game of tonight's double-header, with Ohio State clashing with Wake Forest in the second game. The winners will clash tomorrow night for the right to meet the western finalist for the NCAA championship.

STOCKS POINT LOWER IN DULL TRADE SESSION

Drab Central European Picture Reflected in Market; Foreign Marts Down.

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK—Stocks turned downward today.

Brokers found the central European picture no brighter and scant stimulation was forthcoming from Washington developments or business news. Foreign markets pointed downward.

Principal share sufferers included U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, General Motors, Chrysler, Westinghouse, du Pont, Johns-Mansville, U. S. Rubber, Douglas Aircraft, Anaconda, American Telephone, Montgomery Ward and Eastman Kodak. Bonds slipped with stocks. Commodities were mixed.

Recovery forces were unable to find a great deal of cheer in the Dun and Bradstreet weekly trade survey.

While the spring rise in retail spending was said to have lost momentum, unfavorable weather was seen as a primary factor in the slowdown.

Interest was shown in the Federal Reserve figures for the week ended yesterday. These disclosed another small gain in finanical loans, the fifth consecutive week's improvement.

Combing bright fleece quarter-blood wools were offered at 29-31c in the grease, but buyers were showing no interest even at the low price of the range.

NAZIS ARREST PRAGUE'S JEWS

Suicide Wave Continues as Dreaded Police Conduct Mop Up in City.

lantes and police began searching houses. In the last 36 hours the Hlinka guard posted sentries near the street doors of Bratislava's finest apartment houses, where many wealthy Jews live. They permitted no parcels to be taken out by Jews until the premises had been searched.

Of the few Jews who got out of Slovakia, none was permitted to take money or jewels worth more than 500 crowns (about $17).

Jews were forbidden to fly the Slovak or other flags on their houses or to place patriotic emblems in shop windows.

All means of escape were closed, and it was understood that persons who sought to cross the frontier had been turned back by German Nazi and military guards.

Agents of the secret police, the dreaded Nazi Gestapo, swept down on houses all over Prague in raids such as those Germany, Austria and Sudetenland in turn had experienced, and persons regarded as "enemies of the regime" had their first taste of the methods of the Gestapo and of the black uniformed "SS" Nazi bodyguard troops who co-operate with them.

Thousands of persons were understood to have been arrested, and many apparently had been sent already to Germany and concentration camps.

Nazi "SS" and "SA" troops visited the Czech National bank yesterday and took away 16 truckloads of gold, according to witnesses. The bank's assets, which go to Hitler, include about $81,500,000 in gold and $38,500,000 in foreign currency holdings, it was understood.

BRITAIN CALLS AMBASSADOR TO GERMANY HOME

Seeks Report on Situation as Result of Hitler's Coup in Czechoslovakia.

140 miles from Soviet Russia—to await final outcome of Hungary's military occupation of the eastern tip of the dissolved republic.

Rumania Sees Danger.

In Bucharest, the Rumanians nervously discussed the danger of new wars in Central Europe as their massed frontier troops watched the Hungarians completing occupation of Carpatho-Ukraine. Jews withdrew savings from the banks and there were fears of a new attempt by the Iron Guard anti-Semitic organization—which King Carol has ruthlessly suppressed—to seize power.

In Belgrade, the Jugoslav cabinet, which recently was purged of pro-Nazis, watched developments closely in view of the long-standing demands of the Croats for greater independence. Italy has not been hesitant to encourage the Croatian unrest, which is in an area not adjacent to the Fascist frontier but might conceivably result in an appeal for Italian aid as Slovakia appealed for Hitler's protection.

Even in Switzerland, the fears of the future were mounting and government officials of that traditionally neutral nation were prompted to declare that the Swiss were ready to fight if necessary to maintain their independence.

Eyes on Italy.

Actually, the fears of Britain and France—and the subsequent action of the two powers to strengthen their position—were due more to the prospect for an immediate Italian move in the Mediterranean than to the Nazi thrust in the east.

The Fascist press, led by Virginio Gayda, who usually speaks in Giornale D'Italia for Premier Mussolini, said that Italy was determined to get her share of the spoils falling to the totalitarian partnership without delay.

It was believed probable that the next move would be an offensive by the Nazi and Fascist-supported armies of Gen. Francisco Franco in Spain, to complete the conquest of that nation and that Italy's bid would come soon afterward.

Against the eventuality—which would strike directly home to the democratic powers—both France and Britain were preparing by discussing several important questions.

Rumania Negotiates for Share of Czech Area.

BUCHAREST, Rumania—(UP)—Rumania and Hungary were understood today to be on the verge of concluding negotiations to give Rumania a small share in the dissolved republic of Czechoslovakia.

With Hungarian troops completing occupation of Carpatho-Ukraine, the eastern tip of Czechoslovakia, it was proposed to cede a small border strip in the southern part of that territory to Rumania.

About 20 villages, which Rumania has long claimed, were involved in the negotiations. The villages are predominantly Rumanian in population. Successful conclusion of the negotiations would mean participation of a third power — Rumania — in the German and Hungarian division of the Czechoslovak republic.

The Polish government, through its ambassador Count Raczynski, was sponsoring the negotiations to keep the "buffer" states to the east of Germany united and satisfied. Poland got a small share of Slovakia after the Munich settlement.

Messages to the frontier said that Hungarian troops were fighting scattered bands of Ruthenian militia in Carpatho-Ukraine, including one severe pitched battle in the Ung valley but that the backbone of resistance had been broken. The Hungarians have occupied almost the entire Polish-Carpatho-Ukraine frontier, after several bloody clashes with the militia.

Daladier Calls for 'Free Hand' Decree.

PARIS—(AP)—Premier Daladier called on parliament today for a free hand to govern France by decree until Nov. 30 to bolster the nation's defenses in view of the collapse of Czechoslovakia.

The bill to strengthen France against any menace from expanding Germany contained only the one article authorizing decree powers for the period of more than eight months.

It was approved by the cabinet and sent to the chamber of deputies.

The chamber began debate on the situation arising from Germany's bloodless conquest of Czechoslovakia, once part of France's collective security structure.

A vote of confidence conferring full powers asked by the Daladier government was expected to conclude the debate.

he sought to retain the governorship.

Dickinson was serving his seventh term as lieutenant governor since his first election to that post in 1914. He is Michigan's first lieutenant governor to ascend to the governorship, Fitzgerald being the state's first chief executive to die in office.

Influenza played a strange part in the change of governors. Fitzgerald was ordered to bed with the ailment Monday at his home in Grand Ledge, where he succumbed last night. His physician said complications attributed to an illness several years ago figured in his death.

Dickinson is in bed at his residence in Charlotte, where he and his wife both are victims of the "flu." His sickroom was chosen for the administering of the oath as governor inasmuch as he was unable to come to the capitol here.

Furthermore, the next in lone of succession, Secretary of State Harry F. Kelly, is recovering from influenza in his Lansing hotel.

The new governor was born in Niagara county, N. Y. Politically he is a conservative, not a party machine member. He is a national vice president of the Anti-Saloon league.

The late Gov. Fitzgerald was born in Grand Ledge, only 10 miles from the capital, and always resided there. Surviving are his widow, Queena, and a son, John, 14.

had sent his wife in Greece only $25 a year for the past six years.

Applications were continued to the next hearing in 10 of the 12 cases where citizenship was denied. One petition was dismissed and another applicant was ordered to re-file his application. Others failed to produce the necessary two witnesses or did not have a sufficient knowledge of American government.

Five of the applicants came from the former Czechoslovakia, which was seized by Adolf Hitler.

20 From Jugoslavia.

Twenty members of the group said they came from Jugoslavia. Germany and England contributed seven each and Rumania and Italy, five each. Other countries represented were Sweden, Bulgaria, Greece, Albania, Hungary, Poland, and Russia.

Most of the group had received instruction in civics and government in the citizenship classes conducted at the courthouse by Miss Henrietta Frank, Mansfield. For 11 years she has worked with the applicants for citizenship, helping them to prepare for the examination and to understand the customs of the United States. She assisted yesterday during the hearings.

Also aiding Judge Huston were C. A. McKinley and Norman P. Henry, deputies in the clerk of courts office, and L. E. Fox, federal naturalization examiner from Youngstown.

Examining officials pointed out that a number of the applicants were older persons who have been in the United States for several years and sought citizenship to entitle them to old age pensions. Five-year residence is required for citizenship.

The new citizens are:

ELEPHANTS ONCE ROAMED PLAINS

Tusks Nearly Six Feet Long Found During Excavations for Site of Dam.

(By United Press)

ALVA, Okla., — Professor and students at Northwestern State Teachers college are assembling the most important fossil discovery in this part of Oklahoma in several years—that of a million-year-old elephant.

At the same time workers at site of the Great Salt Plains dam near Cherokee are on the watch for more fossils.

Dr. T. C. Carter, head of the natural science department of the college, supervised the removal of bones of the prehistoric animal from the dam site and is in charge of the assembly work at the school.

Dr. Carter said it is the belief of geologists that a prehistoric sea once covered the Great Salt Plains of northwestern Oklahoma and that bluffs arising to the east of the plains once formed the shores of the huge lake. The inland sea, it is believed, was fed by what is now Salt Fork river. Finally the east bank of the lake gave way, allowing the waters to pass on to the east, forming the remainder of the Salt Fork river and draining the salt sea.

Workmen excavating at the site of the dam, which will form a huge lake on the Salt Plains, found parts of two elephant tusks, nearly six feet long, and shoulder and skull bones.

The bones were brought to Dr. Carter for identification. He went to the diggings with two students, Donald King and Bill Oxley, to aid in the removal.

Claim 80,000 Square Miles for U. S.

VANCOUVER, B. C.—Eighty thousand square miles were added to United States territory by the recent Lincoln Ellsworth Antarctic Expedition, according to the three sun-taned young explorers pictured as their party arrived in Vancouver aboard the Canadian-Australian lined Aorangi.

Dr. Rhoads announced that the new lands explored have general mineral possibilities. They are not volcanic.

Elsworth made contact with the new territory at the 69th latitude south and the 79th longitude east, some 500 miles east of Enderby island.

Several narrow escapes from disaster were experienced by the explorers. The closest came when ice stove a large hole in the bow of the 400-ton expedition ship Wyatt Earp, which the crew were able to patch up before the vessel could fill.

Germany also is claiming lands in the Antarctic as result of a recent expedition there in the Schwabenland.

VOTERS HERE HEALTHIER, STAY AT HOME MORE, REPORT INDICATES

Richland county voters are healthier and stay at home more than the average, or the county's party machines are less effective than in other parts of the state, statistics compiled by the secretary of state indicated today.

The county cast a total of 343 absent and disabled voters' ballots last November for an average of 3.8 votes per precinct as compared with a stat- average of 4.6 votes, the figures showed.

The size of the absent and disabled vote usually depends upon the activity of party precinct workers, but despite a spirited campaign last fall the absent and disabled vote, compared with the total vote, dropped to 1.4 per cent from 2.4 per cent in the 1936 election.

In 1936, when a record county vote of 34,000 was cast, 841 persons cast absent and disabled voters' ballots. Last November's total vote was 23,986.

Last fall, 236 voters cast absentee ballots and 107 persons who were unable to go to the polls because of illnes sent their votes by mail.

The total figures for both absent and disabled voters in the state last fall was 39,766. In 1936 the total was 70,622.

The average per precinct for Ohio counties ranged from a low of 1.3 votes in Butler county to 37.8 in Pike county. Lake county ranked among the lowest with 1.7 per precinct, while Hardin county cast 29.8 per precinct.

LIBRARY JOINS IN RECOGNITION OF WILDLIFE WEEK

New Books on Natural History Added This Week Tell Story of Nation's Wonders.

A group of new books on natural history is the Mansfield library's recognition of Wildlife Conservation week which will be observed over the nation next week.

"Cactus Forest" by Zephine Humphrey, is a book written by a lover of the outdoor. It describes the cactus forests, desert animals, and incredible spectacles of sky and sunset. Her account of the tour of the Carlsbad Caverns in New Mexico arouses the desires of the reader to see this magnificent natural wonder.

Another natural wonder, across the continent in New York state is Howe Caverns. "Story of Howe Caverns" compiled and edited by Virgil H. Clymer is a gift to the library, presented by the editor. He gives the history and geological formation of the caverns.

Other books on natural history and nature are "Western Wildflowers" by Armstrong; "Field Book of Common Mushrooms," Thomas; "Enchanted Trails of Glacier Park," Lau' "America's Highways and Roads " by Gubbels.

Timely Book On Ireland.

In the season of St Patrick a timely book is Lord Dunsany's "My Ireland." He brings to it the quality of the Irish mind, the fog and sunshine of the Irish landscape and the poetic enchantment of the Irish imagination.

"Seven Seas on a Shoestring" by Dwight Long is a record of round-the-world cruising in a 32-foot ketch. The Idle Hour's four-year voyage was filled with excitement and adventure.

Other non-fiction: "Evolution of Finance Capitalism" by Edwards; "State and Federal Grants-in-Aid," Bitterman; "Federal Income Tax Handbook, 1938-1939," Montgomery; "Unlawful Acts With Penalties," Cornish; "Ministrels of the Mine-patch," Korson; "Scientist in Action," George; "Profitable Specialty Shop Operation," Engel and Kahn; "Dictionary of Photography," 14th edition, Wall; "Color Photography for the Amateur," Henney; "American Landscape," Rice.

This week "Seasoned Timber" by Dorothy Canfield Fisher is being added to the John Baxter Black Memorial fund. The book pictures a Vermont town which is symbolic of an America where human values and freedom can still stand against power and material advantages.

"The Story of a Lake" by Negley Farson is a panoramic novel of modern times, the central figure being Anthony Lynd, an American newspaperman.

Rupert Hughes' "Stately Timber" is the story of a romantic Puritan adventurer who grew to young manhood in the Massachusetts Bay Colony in the 1650's.

Sought By Crowd, Two Youths Hike Back to 'Safety'

HOOD RIVER, Ore.—(INS)—If they hadn't been so tired from spending the night lost on Mount Hood amid a howling blizzard Bob Fuller and Blancher Baldwin, youthful mountain climbers, would have joined the searching party looking for them.

They attempted to climb Mount Hood but were overtaken by a snowstorm and compelled to spend the night in the open. Worried friends organized a search party, numbering 100 strong.

Fuller and Baldwin, weary from their night in the open, sought to thumb rides from passing trucks. Several times drivers shouted that they were looking for a pair of lost hikers and were too busy to stop.

The two boys trudged to Government Camp and were amazed to learn they were the object of all the activity.

Embryo Ministers Give Sermons Before Fellow Students.

FORT WORTH, Tex.—(INS)—Practicing what they preach is more than just a figure of speech for members of the Timothy club at Texas Christian university. The club is an organization of ministerial students. At each meeting two students preach fifteen-minute sermons after which their fellow-members criticize the efforts.

The Tripl-ife has kept our house warmer than it has ever been. I did not need to fire as often. It is so easy to operate that a child could fire it."

Books For Children

(Available at Mansfield Public Library)

The new illustrated edition of "East of the Sun and West of the Moon" recalls to mind many favorite fairy tales which this collection includes. All twenty-one of the stories have been told and retold for generations in Norwegian families, but they have never been published in a book as attractive as that recently illustrated by the D'Aulaires, who have made many other lovely picture books for our young readers. One of the stories from this collection will be told in the Saturday morning story hour at the library this week.

"Sylvia, Inc." is the story of a girl, who was nearly blind and her friend, Sylvia Linton, who started their own pottery company to save the Linton Pottery works where they both worked. The handicap of blindness becomes almost an opportunity to Julia Goodheart and her heroism colors this career story throughout.

'The Old Mase' To Be Preserved As Public Shrine

CONCORD, Mass.—(INS)—The Old Manse, near the famous Concord battleground, is to be preserved as a public shrine.

The home of Ralph Waldo Emerson and for a time of Nathaniel Hawthorne, is to be purchased by the trustees of Public Reservations.

The plan is to have the old manse open to the public from May 1 to October 1 each year.

The house is best known through Hawthorne's "Mosses from an Old Manse," written while he spent his honeymoon there. Also it is the ancestral home of Emerson and part of the scene of the historic Battle of Concord at Old North Bridge on April 19, 1775 where the first shot of the American Revolution was fired.

The house was built in 1789 by Rev. William Emerson, who watched the bridge battle from his window.

TWO VOTES WIN

Absentee Voters Cinch Job For Justice of Peace.

SACRAMENTO, Cal.,—(INS)—Two absentee votes cinched the election of Charles H. Fearney as justice of peace of San Diego county's smallest township.

Fearney and another candidate received 17 votes each in a general election, and a special election was necessary. In the latter balloting, Fearney received 19 votes and his opponent, Alex M. MacLeod, received 18. Both absentee votes went to Fearney, and so the election is over and Fearney is the new justice of peace.

One Out of Nine on Public Payrolls.

ANY IDEA that there is some simple and sure remedy for present muddled conditions in this country is not justified by facts.

When it is considered that one out of every nine employed persons in the United States is now on a government payroll—as revealed in a report just issued by the census bureau—reasons back of the steadily increasing federal deficit are better understood.

These public employes account for the expenditure of more than five billion dollars annually, or about one-eighth of all salaries and wages in the country.

Nor do these include persons working on relief projects. Senator Harry F. Byrd estimates 13 million persons will receive government checks this fiscal year, in contrast with two million who received money from that source six years ago. Including dependents of tax supported check receivers Senator Byrd estimates 40 million persons in the United States are now being supported from public funds—or almost one-third of the entire population.

When it is further taken into account that there are from a dozen to hundreds of anxious aspirants for any immediate or prospective vacancy in a public job, and that various pension plans propose adding from ten to twenty million more persons to public payrolls, the difficulties being encountered by productive workers in attempting to carry this increasing load is better appreciated.

It is not that everybody shouldn't have everything they want—it is HOW TO GIVE IT TO THEM that remains to be worked out by President Roosevelt, Harry Hopkins and other administration associates.

Oppose Subdividing Airport.

WHILE there is probable justification for interposing objections to selling a corner of Mansfield's airport property, as proposed last week by Councilman Kyle, it can surely be taken for granted that sound-thinking councilmen will not act on such a matter without giving the public full opportunity to learn what is going on.

It appears that, as presented by Councilman Kyle, the need for immediate action was so great as to justify "suspension of the rules" so that the ordinance could be given three readings and passed at the meeting in which it was first presented.

Any proposal to dispose of a part of Mansfield airport will deserve more serious thought than it seems to have been given by Mr. Kyle in advance of his attempt to rush such a measure through council.

Apotheosis of Hitler.

FOR a year or more Russia has been a land of mystery, with the world left in almost complete ignorance as to what is going on there. Recently Germany seems to be entering the same twilight zone. And most of the mystery is connected with Adolf Hitler, the Nazi "Man of Destiny."

A recent news report from Berlin announced that "Hitler's successor" had been appointed, without giving the reason for such action at this time, or mentioning the name of the successor—who is generally supposed to be his right-hand man, Hermann Goering.

For weeks and months there have been circulating many surprising and baffling stories about Hitler. He is said to be telling associates, and even news correspondents, that "his time is short," without indicating clearly whether he means his life or his tenure as dictator of Germany. Some reports represent him as suffering from an incurable disease.

A story about him in the Cosmopolitan, written by Karl von Wiegand, veteran American war correspondent, tells of a strange retreat Hitler has built for himself on a mountain-top 6,000 feet high, accessible only through a tunnel and an elevator shaft cut in the living rock, and guarded by great bronze doors set in the cliff. And that "Eagle's Nest," the writer suggests, may be intended for Hitler's tomb.

Curtailed Bill of Rights.

THE American Civil Liberties Union, surveying the status of civil rights in cities throughout the country, finds the right of free speech almost universally upheld. There are not more than three cities which are rated "bad" in this regard. And there is little to complain of regarding freedom of the press.

Oddly enough, the Union finds that freedom of assembly is not so generally upheld. Three out of five cities, it reports, "make no more than a 'creditable' showing in observing all the requirements of complete freedom of speech, press and assembly."

The Bill of Rights has most supporters in the largest and smallest cities. It suffers most curtailment in middle-size cities.

Less Franked Mail.

SENATOR O'MAHONEY has proposed an amendment to the treasury-postoffice appropriations bill which would cut down the growing use of free franking services for departmental mail. It has been approved by a subcommittee.

The idea is to prohibit mailing of reports, periodicals, bulletins or pamphlets under frank unless such distribution is required by law, or unless a specific request for an individual item. It would stop the indiscriminate, wholesale mailing of such material, which now costs about $15,000,000 a year.

There is little disposition these days to call such economies too trivial to bother with. It is generally recognized that if there were enough of them, in enough different branches of government, the total would be considerable.

Watching Trends

—By PRESTON GROVER

WASHINGTON — Intramural squabble No. 1 at present goes on between Secretary Hit-'Em-Harold Ickes and stately Senator Key Pittman of Nevada, chairman of the senate foreign relations committee. It is over boat and picnic concessions on Boulder dam reservoir on the Colorado.

The only thing these two important public officials have in common is a hatred for Hitlerism, which they express often and forcefully. Next to Hitler it would seem they dislike each other most.

The affair over Lake Mead (which is Boulder dam reservoir) is their second battle of the Marne. The first was over the confirmation of Ebert K. Burlew as Under-Secretary of Interior. Ickes wanted him. He had had long experience in the department. Pittman denounced him as unsuitable for such a post. They fought that out in the public lands committee and in the senate. Ickes won.

Pittman

The second battle began when Pittman proposed to annex part of the public domain about Lake Mead as a recreation ground for Nevada. Boulder Dam backs up water in precipitous Colorado Canyon for 100 miles. A few miles back of the dam, one arm of this lake reaches out into Nevada along the Vegas Wash, within 19 miles of desert-bound Las Vegas (10,000 population), in southernmost Nevada. There are 2,610 square miles of federally owned public domain around the reservoir. Pittman introduced a bill setting aside 12 miles of it as a state park. His 12 miles included the outreaching arm of the lake in Vegas Wash.

* * *

Gamblers Interested?

THE idea was for the state to set up a resort on the lake shore, attract patrons from far and near, as well as make an outing spot where Las Vegans could sail boats, fish and picnic.

Las Vegans indorsed the plan. So did the state legislature. Bitterly opposed was diminutive Boulder City, created by the six companies which built the dam and now supported in part by the boat concessions at the dam.

Ickes, out west on tour, inspected the park site. Into his ear were poured tales which Pittman says were conjured up by Boulder City concessionaires to block the state park.

The surprised Senate Public Lands committee heard Ickes' reports and ordered hearings, putting Pittman at the head of them.

"It would appear," Ickes wrote, "that as a result of the recent cleanup of anti-social conditions in the city of Los Angeles, a number of gamblers who formerly flourished there have betaken themselves to Las Vegas. It is rumored that they have set about to monopolize the gambling concerns of that city. It is further rumored that they are heartily in support of this state park because they want to extend their enterprises so as to be able to reach out for the tourists who visit Boulder Dam and Lake Mead.

Ickes

"It would not be the first time that persons with ulterior motives imposed upon a representative or senator (this burned Pittman up) by persuading him to offer a bill that would create an objectional special privilege without divulging to him their ulterior motives."

* * *

Suspects Ickes Slap-Back.

HE POINTED out that 160 acres of privately owned land in the park area were reported under option to the Los Angeles exiles. Under Nevada's liberal gambling and saloon license laws, Ickes intimated, there could be "unrestricted drinking and gambling" in the area.

Pittman, suspecting that this was Ickes' way of getting even for his earlier rough handling of Burlew, denied there was any gambler motive. He said state laws would prohibit gambling in the entire park area.

He even proposed to gerrymander the 160 acres right out of the park, thus shutting it away from access to the lake.

But Ickes remembered that Nevada's legislature had kept that state the hell-roaringest spot in the U. S.

Pittman termed such an attitude a "reflection on the good name of the state of Nevada" and predicted the senate would pass the bill, and slap Ickes back among his Indian paintings and tiled bathrooms.

Hotel Strike Upsets Washington

—By CHARLES P. STEWART

THERE are some few stunts at which Washington can outdo any other city in the country—perhaps any other city in the world. For instance, it is hard to think of another metropolis where a strike of hotel employes can dislocate everyday life as it does here.

For one thing, the capital has, in proportion to its size, a prodigious number of ultra-swanky hostelries. Naturally it does. It has a very large, more or less temporary and financially rather well-heeled population—members of Congress and government officials.

To a great extent these folks are hotel denizens. They patronize first class hotels, too. And of course the place everlastingly is full of transients in the private life classification, in town in connection with dickerings between Uncle Samuel and their perfectly enormous corporate interests.

These chaps include such personalities as J. P. Morgan occasionally or Wendell Wilkie of Commonwealth and Southern—moguls of the premier order. We even have kings and queens at times. Royalties, to be sure, usually are quartered at their respective embassies, but they have equerries and lords and ladies in waiting who have to find hotel accommodations. These visitors require nobby surroundings.

All of which accounts for our Mayflowers, Willards, Carltons, et cetera, the usual stopping-places of our comparatively short-time guests, and for our Wardman Parks and Shorehams, residential hotels mainly patronized by those who stay for quite a while—the executively governmental bunch, senators and representatives.

Such Folks Strike-Bound!

Now, obviously it is most embarrassing to the municipality to have sojourners of this type strike-bound here, wholesale.

The heck of it is that there's nowhere else for them to go.

If Miami were to have a hotel strike, vacationers could go to Palm Beach instead, or stop off at Atlantic City or journey to southern California. But Washington is the only possible concentration point for people who are trying to transact official business.

Kings and queens, foreign emissaries and domestic lobbyists perhaps could have postponed their respective arrivals when the Washington hotel strike was declared. But executive federal functionaries and legislators have to be here all the time, anyway. And at least a solid 50 per cent of them live in hotels outlawed by the strikers.

True, the strike-bound hotel managements immediately asserted that their various services were not materially handicapped.

Nevertheless, a pro-labor guest at one of these inns was not in favor of crashing the picket-line to get into and out of his Washington home. A few did it; they had to, ir preference to eating at lunch stands and sleeping on park benches, but they didn't like it.

The worst of it was that candid-cameramen snapped them doing their picket-line-breaking. Such pictures necessarily will figure largely on next election day.

Senators Glass of Virginia and Lewis of Illinois defied the lightning. They're not particularly popular with labor anyhow. Senator Robert F. Wagner (superlaborite) snooped out and in through a postern exit and entrance of the Hotel Shoreham, without physically cutting the picket line. He had to—to get down to the Capitol building and back again. Plenty of other lawmakers undoubtedly did the same thing without being spotted.

Lucky the legislator who has a home of his own in Washington or its suburbs!

By the way, Phil Murray of the United Mine Workers and Sidney Hillman of the Clothing Workers, two of the chief lieutenants of Generalissimo John L. Lewis of the CIO in the national labor strife, were guests in one of Washington's strike-bound hotels when the strike broke out. They checked out in a hurry. I don't know what refuge they hunted, but it just goes to show how miscellaneously sideswiping that strike was—all the way from ultra-capitalism to basic labor-ism.

Public Forum Gains Popularity In U. S.

GROWTH of "public forums" in this country is almost incredible. There is hardly a city that hasn't its "discussion groups" of one kind or another, meeting regularly to talk about public affairs and world problems. The "Town Meeting of the Air" conducted in New York city along with the thousand smaller groups born of it throughout the country, is an impressive example of this tremendous urge to exchange ideas on important matters.

All this probably started 24 centuries ago, when the philosopher Socrates assembled his informal discussion groups on street corners or in the Athenian market place and argued about everything in the heavens above and on the earth beneath. It was taken up in a big way later in Rome, whose market place or "Forum" produced the very name still used for unofficial debates. The "Round Table" is a much later idea, but a valuable addition, referring perhaps to the table at which legendary King Arthur and his knights sat, ate and talked, on terms of equality, because there was no "head of the table."

American "forums" thus far have been mostly indoors, when by origin and heritage they really should be outdoors when climate and weather permit. It would ease the argumentative pressure of this nation if every town had at least one spot, with a raised platform, where any citizen or visitor at any time could stand up and get anything off his chest.

Cleveland used to have a famous forum of this sort in the days of Mayor Tom Johnson. There has long been one in Hyde Park, London, and in Boston Common. It's a great thing to ease the political, social and oratorical pressure of a community.

Ohio Anecdotes

Apiarist By Chance.

Amos I. Root of near Medina, who is credited with doing much toward commercializing bee-keeping, became an apiarist quite by chance.

One day in August, 1865, Root observed a stray swarm of bees passing through the air. When a farm hand offered to hive the bees for a dollar, Root accepted, and from that time on became a student and breeder of bees.

By 1876 Root employed 20 men to work with his bees, and later he organized the A. I. Root Co., employing more than 100 persons. Root built and perfected the first comb foundation machine, and was the first to put out honey comb section boxes, each holding a pound of honey.

As a youth, he was frail and nervous, but as his business thrived, allowing him greater leisure, he regained his health. He died April 30, 1923.

Listen, World!

A Plain American Speaks.

—By ELSIE ROBINSON

ARE YOU tired of hearing what's wrong with America? Fed up on Rebels and Reformers . . . plumb sick of Analyses and Surveys, Sociological Reports and Economic Plans? And would you give an ear to hear someone say they like this place and are glad they're here? Then settle right down and enjoy yourself—while a plain American speaks.

This column has printed many a broadcast in its twenty years of existence. It has quoted great poets and philosophers and commented on Big Shots of all degrees. But for downright beauty and truth, refreshment and inspiration it has never published anything that could touch the following simple remarks by A. G. White of Baltimore, Md.

Dear Miss Robinson,

I hear you are offering people a chance to be columnist for a day. I have never wanted to be a columnist. I do not expect to be one now. But I would like to say a few things about my country which sure need saying. For the last ten years I have never heard anything but wheezes. Well I, as a plain American worker, would like to tell this country that here is one family that is content and thinks it is having a swell deal.

"I work in the steel mill for the Bethlehem Steel company at Sparrows Point, Maryland. I made approximately thirteen hundren dollars last year and I am not going to belly-ache. I am fortunate to have work. I have a wife and three children and they are all swell. We have had some hard knocks, my wife and I, but we still have our chin up.

"We lost our money, business and furniture during the depression but we haven't lost our courage and our self-respect. We don't believe the saying that the country is ruined. We believe that the country is about the same as ever and that when the people get right the country will take care of itself.

"We know politics are rotten but we haven't done anything to better them so we have no squawk there. We believe that what this country needs first and last and always is Common Sense. Outside of that we believe in the things America has always stood for such as Decency, Education, Clean Sport and the clumsy and natural things of earth and the lessons one learns from them.

"We are not getting all that we want but we are making the best of what we have. We go to the movies before six o'clock to save a dime. We walk because we do not have a car and cannot afford the luxury of a taxi. Some of our clothes are patched but clean. We don't have the things to eat we like but we don't go hungry. We do not buy all the things we need but we pay for what we do buy. Our three-room apartment is tidy and clean and we enjoy it. We are giving our children an education and are saving money to buy better furniture.

"Some day we will have our own home again, and believe me that will be a happy day. But even without it, we feel we are a lucky family for things could be so much worse. Just to be in America is enough for us. It is a swell place to live, with the finest people on earth, where the sky is the limit and every one deals their own hand. We think that a free country, with free people is God's paradise and that if He ever made anything better than America He kept it for His own personal playground.

"Yes, grandfather and grandmother were born in America. Dad and Mother were born in America, I was born in America, too, and if I am ever born again, please God, let it be in America."

A. G. WHITE,
Baltimore, Md.

AND I, FOR ONE, SAY AMEN. AND THANK GOD MEN LIKE THAT STILL COME.

Man About Manhattan

—By GEORGE TUCKER

NEW YORK—"My name is Fred —Fred Warren if you want the rest of it, and I've been behind this bar three, four, maybe five years. Before that I worked in a Turkish bath, but the steam got me. The doctor said my lungs couldn't stand being in a damp place 10 hours a day. That's how I became a bartender. I like it here.

"I get three, four, maybe five dollars a day in tips. I got nobody but myself to look after. I got a broken foot that never healed properly, and I used to have a wife. But she doesn't cost me alimony. I got a little girl three, four, maybe five years old, but I haven't seen her in a long time. I never see her. Her mother doesn't want me to see her, and maybe she's right.

"I got a brother somewhere, if he's alive, but I haven't heard from him since the night Coolidge took office. I got a room down the street, a nice room three, four, maybe five flights up. It has a bed and a good light to read by, and a radio and some magazines and a picture on the wall of Columbus showing the Indians he brought back with him to the King.

* * *

"I GOT a bank account with three, four, maybe five hundred dollars and I would have had a lot more, but the land wasn't worth much then, and I put it in my wife's name, and since then I hear there's oil all around it, which will make it pretty nice for her, if there is oil there and they get to it.

"I see lots of nice people in here and hear lots of interesting talk. People like to talk to bartenders. People like to get things off their chest. They like advice, but I don't give much of it. A man came in here a while ago and when I asked him, 'What'll it be?' he said, 'What do you recommend?' . . . I said to him, 'I don't recommend anything. That would be encouraging you to drink, and it's against the law to encourage drinking.' . . . That's a curious thing, isn't it? . . . You can sell anything you want to a man, but it's against the law to encourage drinking.

"Another man, a regular customer of mine, sent me a wire this morning, saying he'd be here around five-thirty. He always sends me a wire, and I fix his drinks in advance. He likes a certain kind of highball, partly frozen, and I fix three, four, maybe five for him and let them sit in the refrigerator. They're there now. He'll be in here after while and sit down at that table over yonder and stay till he drinks them all, and then he'll tip me a dollar and go out and I won't hear from him for three, four, maybe five weeks, then he'll send me another telegram.

"I GOT good hours here. I'm off by 10 o'clock at night and sometimes I go to the movies, but mostly I go home and read or write letters. I write lots of letters, mostly to the newspapers. I've had letters published in four of the New York papers on the same day. I clip them out and save them in clip-books. I just started a new one last week. They fill up fast, clip books. I got three, four, maybe five filled now, and I got some clippings here in my pocket. This one here is about 15 years old, but it isn't a letter. It's from a school paper. It's a prophecy, 'Voted most likely to succeed—Fred Warren.' Yet, that was about 15 years ago.

"Sometimes I wonder if any of my old classmates will wander in here—but they never have. I suppose they'd be surprised to see me. I suppose they'd think I was insane to put up with this, but then, how can you argue with people who see things differently than yourself?

"What'll it be?"

A Farmer's Diary

Burning Brush.

—By CALVIN A. BYERS

IT IS a year now since the woodsmen cut the timber from our woods and left it a snarl of fallen tops, hollow trunks and matted mounds of brush. In places where we cut some winter firewood the earth is clear. In a few other spots dense growth of slim young saplings, stand straight and unharmed. But mostly the woods floor is a misleading, bristling tangle.

Late yesterday afternoon my wife and I walked slowly through the woods. We found two heaps of brush in a cleared place that tempted us to burn them. One was heaped high at the base of a fine young beech and we lit the fire of dry grass and twigs at the central edge, so that the wind might drive the flames a little away from the tree and leave it unharmed. The plan worked. Great sheets of flame leaped half way to the treetop, but did not touch the trunk. As fast as the ends burned off, I took a long pole with a forked end and tossed the burning brands away from the tree into the heart of the fire.

When that pile was nearly gone, we started another blaze at the end of a long rambling heap of underbrush. I lit some grass and shielded it with my hand among the fine, dry twigs until the heat became great enough for the wind to catch the flames and drive them, roaring and leaping, through the tangled mass. The larger branches hissed and sizzled, wrapped in their fiery garment. The small twigs sang high sputtering notes and, partially consumed, flew through the air.

I saw the long blue line of odorous smoke sail across the woodland, across the highway, into a neighbor's pasture. There his herd of Guernsey cattle became outlined in misty haze, as in a dream.

It was a fascinating task. Reluctantly, at dusk, we wended our way homeward.

It rained in the night. This morning the woods floor wears two new black rings of charred wood ashes and we marvel at how clean it looks beneath the trees. The beech stands, straight and unscathed. From the thick carpet of leaves, other little trees will sprout to take, in years to come, the place of those fallen giants whose funeral pyre we lighted yesterday.

HOLD SUPPER

Galion St. Patrick's Parish Stage's Observance.

GALION—Honoring the patron saint, St. Patrick's parish observed Saint Patrick's day with a supper and program Thursday evening at St. Patrick's school.

The celebration got under way at 6 p. m. when a chicken supper was served to members of the parish and guests. The supper was served until 8 p. m. in the church basement, and this was followed with a program, games and contests in the school auditorium. Mrs. T. R. Dougherty was general chairman of the affair.

Opening the program, an operetta, "My Wild Irish Rose," was presented by the primary grades. Those who had special numbers were Syvonne Kempf, John D. Beecher, Marcella Koschnick, Lorraine Beaulieu, Richard Stiner and Mary Ellen Coleman. Other features included a pageant by students of the upper grades, and a number of songs.

England Continues Preparing for Trouble

This mobile first aid station is England's latest innovation in the air raid precaution movement which continues at rapid pace while the eyes of the world watch the rapid development of Chancellor Adolf Hitler's program of German expansion in Central Europe. The first aid station is an old bus equipped with folding sides that open to form "hospital" wings when necessity arises.

DIRECT ACTION

Church Doesn't Pay So Italian Brickmason Walls Up Doorway.

MODENA—(AP)— A brickmason here, named Goldoni, believes in direct action on "bad" debt cases. After years of futile efforts to collect 60,000 lire he claimed were still owing him for building a suburban church tower, he went in the night with two helpers and walled in the tower doorway.

The sexton's failure to call the faithful to prayers the following morning brought a gesticulating crowd, a distinguished parish priest and the law. Goldoni is defending his action in the local assizes.

Farmer Tells How Vendol Relieved Agonizing Pains

Lexington Citizen Describes Awful Suffering in Muscles, Back, Arms and Legs. Till Vendol Relieved Constipation and Acted as Diuretic to His Kidneys. Feels Great Now, He Says.

MR. FRANK CRABELL

"Unless a person suffered the same way I did, not long ago, they'll never know just how bad I felt," said Mr. Frank Crabell, well known farmer living on route 2, Lexington, Ohio, to the Vendol Man in Central Drug Store a few days ago.

"My troubles all came from constipation and need of a diuretic to my kidneys, and this condition made me stiff and sore all over. Everyone knows that a farmer's work is not easy, and the pains in my back, arms, shoulders and legs made everything twice as hard. Sometime when I stooped over, it felt as though I could hardly straighten up again. When night came I was wornout, but I could never get a good night's sleep for having to get up so often to relieve my kidneys. Then I'd have a hard time trying to get back to sleep again. When it came time to get up I actually felt as tired as if I'd done a hard day's work, my head would ache, I felt dizzy, and had no appetite for breakfast.

"I had heard and read so much about Vendol helping others all around here, so decided to see if it wouldn't do the same for me. I can say now that it was the very thing I needed.

"In no time at all Vendol relieved my constipation and acted as a diuretic to my kidneys, and I began to improve in every way. After taking but two bottles, I'm free of those terrible aches and pains, can stoop and bend with ease, and I can sleep the whole night through without having to get up once. "I find since getting my proper rest I have more strength and energy, can work hard all day without feeling tired out at night, and get up in the mornings with a clear head and a good appetite. This medicine certainly does all you say it will, and you can count on me to recommend it to everyone."

Visit the Vendol Man at Central Drug Store, Cor, Main and Fourth Sts., today and learn all about this superb mixture of extracts from Nature's Roots and Herbs combined with Alkalines. There is no charge, so don't delay. Leading druggists everywhere sell and recommend Vendol.

Congress Revolt Threatens Roosevelt Money Powers

MOVEMENT TO CURB POLICIES GAINS BACKING

Resolutions in Senate Would Strip President of Authority to Devalue Dollar.

BACKGROUND

President Roosevelt has tremendous monetary powers, voted him by congress in the turbulent early days of the New Deal. He can devalue the gold content of the dollar, as he once did; he buys newly mined domestic silver at inflated prices; he operates a $2,000,000,000 fund to stabilize international exchange. All these powers expire June 30, unless renewed by congress.

(By International News Service)

WASHINGTON — A major revolt, spreading through congress, today endangered extension of President Roosevelt's vast powers to devalue the gold content of the dollar and to subsidize American silver producers.

These powers, along with presidential authority to operate the $2,000,000,000 stabilization fund, expire automatically June 30, unless congress enacts renewal legislation.

A survey of congressional sentiment indicated congress will grant a year's extension of the stabilization fund operations but will refuse to renew the other powers. This would strip the president of power to further reduce the gold content of the dollar and to pay as high as 64.64 cents an ounce for newly mined American silver.

Hit New Money Policy.

There is also revolt against his present power to issue $3,000,000,000 of new money, unsupported by either gold or silver bullion. Some authorities say this power expires too June 30 but administration legal authorities declare it a continuing power, which would have to be specifically repealed by congress. Two repeal resolutions are pending in the senate.

Revolt against renewing the gold devaluation power was most widespread. The president used this power once in the early days of the New Deal to make a forty per cent slash in the gold dollar, thereby creating the so-called 59-cent dollar.

The survey disclosed the house coinage committee stands 11 to 7 in favor of extending the authority, but with the chairman, Rep. Andrew Somers (D.) of New York, fearful of defeat in the house. A poll of a senate banking and currency subcommittee, now studying the same issue, disclosed it stands 7 to 3 against voting the extension.

There is strong opposition in both house and senate to extension of the stabilization fund — used by the administration to bolster wavering foreign currencies at times of international distress. Best information indicates this power will be extended. Chief opposition is directed against the secrecy in which the fund is operated—a secrecy the administration asserts is necessary to make its operations successful.

The president's power to buy newly-mined silver at subsidy prices is also under fire. It has strong support among congressmen from the silver sections of the west but stubborn opposition from other sections.

Personality Vital In Any Business Grocers Are Told

Personality of merchants and clerks, even in a day of gigantic corporations where the individual apparently is little more than a cog in a machine, largely determines the failure or success of a business, Edythe Fern Melrose, program director of WJW, Akron, told 100 members and guests of the Independent Grocers Institute last night at the Southern hotel.

Speaking at the spring meeting of the grocers, Miss Melrose defined personality as "that warmth, that genius which attracts others to us."

"You may be just as smart as the other man and have just as fine a line of goods, but somehow the other fellow goes further," she said. "The difference between you and that other person is not what you do, but the manner in which you do it."

To improve personality, she continued, one should rehearse the role he hopes to play every day.

"That may sound superficial, but remember we are pretty largely the things we think about. If we think and act cheerfully, soon others will be attracted to us. It isn't hypocrisy—we actually are cheerful and friendly by dint of trying to be that way."

Verne Lersch presided and introduced the speakers. Others who spoke were Tom Dillon, president of the institute, and Henry A. Kampf, president of the Retail Grocers' association. Arrangements were in charge of Ralph Schad, merchandise manager of the institute.

Mine Union Hints Operators Plan Lock-Out

Up and Down THE STREET

Jane Wilson, the "Sleep Girl" of the Fred Waring show, came home this week for a brief vacation and visit with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Wilson. Her brother, Jack, who is in the Waring Glee club, remained in New York City for rehearsals. There is a possibility that the glee club may be "farmed out" for 26 weeks this summer to the Billy Rose show at the World's fair, while the rest of the Waring troupe either returns to the air or goes on tour. Jane goes back to New York in time for rehearsals for the Washington, D. C., engagement on March 30. After that there is a Pittsburgh engagement and then four weeks at the Strand in New York City.

Workers at headquarters of the Civic Music association were touched yesterday when a mother from one of the poor homes in Mansfield came in and laid down $2.50 for a student ticket for her daughter. The money was in small change and one crumpled dollar bill. "I've washed and ironed and mended and taken care of the neighbors children for that money," she said with a bright smile, "but it's worth it. My daughter loves music and is studying it at school and I want her to hear the very best musicians whenever it is possible." With help like that, one guesses that the girl will make something of her talent.

Harold Miller, Senior high faculty member, raises his voice and joins in the cry sweeping the nation against blood and thunder radio serials for children. He is quoted in yesterday's issue of Howard Beaufait's column in the Cleveland News as believing that the situation is serious. "It might be solved," he wrote, "through the efforts of the Parent-Teachers organizations, or by the combined work of different organizations. . . . It seems a pity that really worthwhile programs cannot be given, something that really would add to the education and fulness of the lives of these small future citizens."

MAP FIGHT FOR EXTENSION OF OLD CONTRACT

New Contract Refused, Mine Operators Claim Appeal for More Time 'Premature.'

(By United Press)

NEW YORK —United Mine Workers Union officials demand from Appalachian bituminous producers today a fuller explanation of their refusal to extend the present collective bargaining contract pending negotiations of a new agreement.

The contract expires March 31 and UMW leaders believe a new agreement cannot be reached before then because they are asking a 50 cent wage increase and the operators propose pay cut of the same amount.

Some union officials believe the operators' refusal to extend the present agreement if a new contract is not negotiated by April 1, implied a threat to lock out 320,000 employes.

Charge Lewis Stalling.

Coal operators on the other hand, thought the union's extension proposal "premature" and believed that UMW President John L. Lewis was attempting to delay negotiations until soft coal prices are re-established by the National Bituminous Coal commission. Federal price fixing is designed to guarantee to operators the cost of production and to check the industries' largest losses.

The operators yesterday rejected a union motion which said:

"In order to allay any public apprehension concerning the possibility of a suspension of mining operations in the bituminous coal industry due to the expiration of existing wage agreements, this joint conference resolves that in the event no agreement is reached by March 31, 1939, that work in the industry shall be continued under the existing wage conditions and contracts pending continuance of negotiations and ultimate success or failure to agree on a new contract."

Operators said they believed a new contract could be negotiated before the present agreement expired.

FAIR ENOUGH!

Pegler Wonders What'd Happen If Presidential Critic Became President

—By WESTBROOK PEGLER

NEW YORK—All right, you think you are so hot, you're elected. You're elected president of the United States. Now go on. Get in there and do it your way. You're so hot.

Write us an inauguration speech. About 6000 words will do. Did you ever have any experience in writing? Do you know how much copy 6000 words is, just as wordage alone, and never mind what the words say?

That one will keep you up a few nights, and if you get by inauguration without making a chump of yourself, then you have only three years and 364 days to go. Just a breeze.

No, don't try to climb down. You are so hot. You thought Coolidge looked funny and Hoover looked dopey, and I have heard you crack wise about some of the activities of Mr. Roosevelt's wife.

* * *

Well, what do you think people are saying about your looks? You are no Robert Montgomery yourself, and that old lady of yours is going to give you plenty of headaches shooting off her face before your term is out.

And both of you had better go up the pole for duration, because you are inclined to take socks at people when you are drammed up, and it wouldn't look so good if the papers came out some morning saying, "President Spelvin swings on German ambassador and is goaled by left to chin. Diplomatic relations severed. War imminent."

* * *

And your ever-loving habit of telling dirty stories. How do you think it is going to sound to the public when that gets around and all the commuters' gags are attributed to Madam President? People will be saying the White House must be nothing but a joint nowadays.

And about appointments. There is a judgeship open in Jersey, and the boys send you a name, because you can't be expected to know enough people individually to select ideal men for all jobs that must be filled. So you name him, and in a couple of days you discover they have slipped you a terrible burglar.

* * *

How are you doing, chum? How do you like it in the White House by now, funny-face? Where does your old lady buy those hats? And that voice! I heard her on the radio. Fresh fish! What's this about your son beating his wife? Do you know what the labor guys are saying about your son? They are calling you a tyrant and him the tyrant's heel. Not bad, not bad.

Get going, you. You are president. You were the one who could turn in a better job than Mr. Big. Give us a tell about this gold business. What's all this about gold? Look that one up and write us a message about it, and then tell us how you are going to save the farmers. No stalling, now. Lay it on the line.

* * *

You never realized there could be so many problems calling for single-handed decisions affecting the living, even the lives, of the people, and on matters about which you know nothing, but you wanted to be president.

Time to write us a nice, long fireside chat, Spelvin. Say about 4000 words of analysis, optimism and policy. What about neutrality? Why don't you balance the budget? Why don't you clear the slums and reduce taxes and build up the Army and Navy? You know you are strangling business, don't you? Write it tonight. Got a diplomatic dinner tonight? Well, write it after they go home.

* * *

Read all those tables and reports in your spare time—and, oh, what about Mexico? Of all the dirty outrages! You call yourself an American, and the president, at that, and you let those mugs confiscate our oil wells? Make them give them back.

What's the matter, Spelvin? Whatever you do, somebody squawks. Can't take it. Get back in there! Get back in there and pitch! You asked for it.

STATE ORDERS EXTRA FIREMAN

Shelby Given 60 Days to Comply With Industrial Code; Council Unfavorable.

SHELBY—City officials today were faced with the problem of hiring an additional fireman for the Shelby fire department to comply with regulations of the state industrial relations code.

Under the code regular firemen are limited to 24 consecutive hours on duty. At present, due to only three regular firemen being on full time duty at the fire station, the firemen are compelled to be on duty 48 consecutive hours. The firemen receive one day off duty every three days. If another fireman is hired by the department, the men would receive every other day off duty, bringing the number of consecutive hours on duty to 24 which would comply with the state code.

At a conference between members of the state industrial board and city officials here last month, the city was given "60 days" to comply with the state code. Council has opposed the addition of another fireman to the department. Councilmen pointed out that a junior fireman was hired last year, in addition to the purchase of a new chassis for the fire truck. Council has contended that the force on the Shelby fire department is adequate for a city of the size of Shelby.

City officials said "action may be taken by the city to hire the additional fireman after a survey of the Shelby fire district is made next month." The survey is expected to be made in this city by the state fire board and the national board of fire underwriters upon completion of the 300,000-gallon water storage tank on Mohican street which is part of the $105,000 PWA improvements for the municipal water company. The tank will raise the water pressure in the city's fire district.

RIVER PACKET RACE CHALLENGE FROM WEST FAILS TO EXCITE

(By Associated Press)

CINCINNATI — Another attempt to impress the Ohio valley with the speed of California steamboats fell on calm waters around here today.

Boatmen disclosed receipt of a handsomely printed note from an assortment of California officials, including Gov. Culbert Olson, concluding:

"Therefore, we, the undersigned, for and in behalf of our various communities and the state of California, do hereby challenge the river communities of the United State to select their speediest passenger boats and to engage with us in an old-fashioned steamboat race to be held simultaneously on the Hudson, the Ohio, the Mississippi, the Sacramento and the San Joaquin rivers; such race to be held against time and over a charted course, on Saturday, the 22nd of April, 1939."

Capt. Tom Greene of the Greene line said he couldn't be interested because his fastest boat, the Tom Greene, is to be laid up soon for a new hull.

Capt. Slack Barrett of the Barrett lines said the Richard Barrett was faster than the Tom Greene but the race would cost $400. He also doubted that the race could be accurately handicapped on the five rivers. It apparently would be something like the telegraph matches rifle clubs stage.

LAFF-A-DAY

"Have you an appointment?"

Hollywood Speaks—

—By ROBBIN COONS

HOLLYWOOD—This town gets you. You get so you don't notice things like these, you just take them for granted, which is a shame:

A truck rumbling down the boulevard, its sole passenger a complacent elephant—on his way to movie glory. (The critter belongs to Frank Whitbeck, Metro exploitation genius, who bought it after its film debut—and promptly lost his heart to it, now regards it as a pet, and incidentally makes it pay its way with further acting chores.)

Two halves of a 12-room house being trundled slowly down a main highway, in the wee hours, causing late spotters, homeward-bound, to blink and regret that last nightcap (It's Miss Marion Davies' travel-weary little studio shack, headed for that last round-up.)

Irving Berlin accepting an academy award on behalf of Alfred Newman for a score Newman wrote based almost wholly on Irving Berlin songs—and Hal Wallis accepting the Irving Thalberg Memorial Award for himself as the outstanding producer of the year—when (in my opinion, of course) if it hadn't been for Associate Producer Henry Blanke . . . but that's Hollywood. . . .

* * *

A SCRIPT girl sitting up half the night writing five pages of impossible dialogue—just for a "rib." . . . The gag was intended for Sidney Toler on the last day of "Charlie Chan In Reno." . . . Director Norman Foster thought it would be fun to see Chan fume at the big dose of memory work just around wind up time. . . . And it was—until Toler's detecting mind went to work. . . . When he saw the word "perspicacity" he knew it couldn't be serious dialogue, because a scripter who foisted so many sibilants on an actor would be tarred and feathered.

Peter the Hermit and his rivals in beards and semi-nudity patrolling the boulevard—the ladies with purple hair, the girls in slacks and shorts, and bronzed young men and pale, and insufferable "kiddies" and their clucking movie mamas; and giant malted milks, and the temples of strange cults that look like papier-mache movie sets.

* * *

And the trim beauties at the drive-in barbecues, most of them looking like movie stars. . . . And movie stars whose looks wouldn't get them a second look if you passed them in a busy street. . . . And "friendly divorces" . . . ("We can't stand to look at each other another minute—but we're still Good Friends," is the honest version of what the devoted divorcers put out. . . .)

And a giant ex-bartender and circus man who is 7 feet 10—and couldn't get a job as a bartender because—well, I suppose the cocktail rooms don't want clients to think they're seeing things before they really start seeing things. . . .

And those title changes. . . . Portentuous things like this bulletin from 20th: "'. . . 'Alexander Graham Bell' will be known as 'The Story of Alexander Graham Bell'. . . ." Which it will—when they invent rubber marquees!

Mother Keeps Them Apart

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

It seems that out of five children I'm the one who is expected to take care of my mother, which I am glad to do as I love her very much. But she is doing everything in her power to keep me and the man I love apart. We have gone together for ten years. Her one objection to him is that he is not religious.

He thinks he doesn't make enough to keep up a home, and while I'd be glad to continue working, I'm afraid I might be too tired to make a happy home and work six days a week.

He has asked me to give him up for my mother. But if I should do this, it would mean the end of happiness for me.

BLUEBIRD.

I wish you had trusted me with your name and address, when I could have written to you at greater length than space in this column affords. You've given this man the best ten years of your life. If you part, it means the end of your happiness. Don't break with him, take a chance. You will not have your mother always; what then?

It is selfish of her to raise these barriers, and it is equally selfish of your brothers and sisters not to help with your mother's maintenance. Every large family seems to have its martyr. Don't accept your halo. It isn't as if you were happy in being so unselfish.

THEATERS

AFTER hearing Douglas Corrigan's high-pitched voice in "The Flying Irishman," you will be impressed anew with the fact that real life heroes seldom run true to the movies types. The picture is no great dramatic triumph, according to Pacific coast reviewers, but it will be a pleasant surprise. Scenario writers have built a new legend to account for the famous Corrigan leather jacket. In the film, (not in real life) it is given to him as a souvenir of a pal who dies in a crash. The true story, of course, is that young Corrigan, who was born poor, bought the jacket from the shelves of a second hand store in San Diego. But the "Wrong Way" flyer can afford to laugh at the inevitable criticism of his acting ability. There are exactly $50,000 reasons whey he can laugh—plus $25,000 more for the screen rights to his magazine story.

* * *

"Beachcomber" Continues.

"The Beachcomber," one of the best of the Charles Laughton pictures to date, continues at the Ohio through Saturday, giving way for a new midnight show late Saturday night. Elsa Lanchester supports her famous husband in this film version of Somerset Maugham's "Vessel of Wrath," the unusual story of a woman missionary and a beachcomber.

* * *

Woman Attorney.

* * *

Texas Stampede.

Charles Starrett, popular Columbia star, is seen as a courageous sheriff, who enforces the law among his friends, to prevent a bloody feud between cattle and sheep men in "Texas Stampede," Majestic attraction. Lucille Ball and James Ellison are also seen in "Next Time I Marry," the love story of a badly spoiled heiress and a WPA worker.

* * *

International Intrigue.

Gene Autry tangles with international intrigue in his latest film, "Western Jamboree" when he is the foreman of a ranch suspected of having helium on it. The precious chemical is the objective of foreign powers, and there are a lot of sock-em-and-shoot-em before everything is worked out satisfactorily. "Young Doctor Kildare" with Lew Ayers and Lionel Barrymore is also shown.

* * *

Dog Shares Honors.

A magnificient dog, Ace, shares stellar honors with Richard Dix in "Blind Alibi," at the Park. He is a Seeing Eye dog who guides his supposedly blind master who has been made a member of a gang of racketeers. "Swing That Cheer," a college story with Tom Brown, Robert Wilcox and a cast of youthful players, is also on the bill.

A little mustard spread over chops or steaks to be broiled or baked will greatly improve the flavor.

Marriage Meddlers

By ADELE GARRISON

Continuation of "Married Comrades"

"You may be right, mother," I said, careful not to admit that Philip Veritzen had confided that very intention to me. "But, of course, I wouldn't know about that. However, as I told you, the fact that the elder Veritzen is coming back here today gives me a splendid opportunity to have Noel go back with him. If you can excuse me, I will go to see Noel and prepare him for his sudden exit."

"Yes, I suppose you ought to give him a little notice, so he can get his traps together," she agreed. "But if I were you, I wouldn't give any hint to Olina that he's going. What she doesn't know won't hurt her."

"Then do you think I would better postpone my talk with Olina over her atrocious behavior?" I asked, feeling like a reincarnation of Machiavelli as I spoke.

She considered a second or two, pursing her lips and knitting her eyebrows.

"I really don't see the necessity of bothering to talk to her at all," she said at last, and I could have leaped in joy at my triumph, of which she did not dream.

"If Noel is safely away from the house," she went on, "her only happiness will be gone. Unless, of course, she should write to him," she went on speculatively.

"I think her mother would take a hand if she should attempt anything like that," I went on hastily, and told her what Katharine had said about overhearing the queen giving her daughter a "wigging" on the subject of Noel.

"I did not understand what it meant when Katharine told me," I went on mendaciously. "But your story explains it, of course. The queen must have had ears even in her sleep, and called her daughter to account accordingly."

"I thought she was too fine and sensible a woman to stand for any nonsense like that," Mother Graham said. "I imagine we can leave the problem of Olina's behavior to her."

"That is, of course, as you think best," I said with purposeful meekness, and my mother-in-law gave a dry little chuckle.

"Got your own way, didn't you?" she said surprisingly. "But is happens to suit me; otherwise, I wouldn't accept it."

"Have you thought what excuse I can give Philip Veritzen for sending Noel away?" I asked.

"My shoulders are broad," she said stoutly. "Lay it all on me. Tell him I got a bee in my bonnet about Mary, that she wouldn't like the arrangement, and so insisted that Noel must leave."

"You're a wonder, Mother," I said warmly, and meant it, for she had hit upon the only possible excuse for the satisfying of Philip Veritzen.

"Never mind the compliments," she replied brusquely. "If you attend to Noel and make arrangements for that interview his father wants with Queen Olga, you have your work cut out for you."

I agreed with her as I left the room and went back to the nursery to take counsel with Katharine. When I told her of my conference with my mother-in-law, she bent double in silent laughter.

"The darling old martinet!" she said presently. "Trust her to turn the trick! And I don't believe you'll have any more delay. Olga and Olina have quieted down, and Harry reports that Noel is eating a good breakfast in comfort."

"I'll go up and see him first," I decided.

Treatment For Red Nose

By MME. QUI VIVE

Blushes should stay where they belong, on the cheeks. A rosy chin is alluring, a pinkish cast upon the pearly earlobes is what a girl desires. But when the glowing color settles upon the nose there is weeping and wailing and a gnashing of teeth. It is, in fact, enough to drive a girl crazy.

There are two forms of this beauty grief, the roseate condition that comes when the nose is caressed by cold winds and the one that is permanent. If the redness sticks right there, measures for relief must be sought post-haste. The skin is subject to many infections, some of which begin with a solid pinkness that causes no discomfort. Only a medical man is qualified to treat inflammation. To experiment with home remedies is hazardous. Ask your family physician to give you the name of a reliable specialist who deals with infections of the skin and scalp.

But the come-and-go redness is something else. It has a way of hobnobbing with moist hands and cold feet, which shows that circulation is not up to par, that the health in general is not as robust as it should be.

* * *

A good circulation stimulant is the salt glow. Moisten a cupful of ordinary table salt, stand in the bath tub, friction the salt into the entire body surface. Turn on the warm shower, then the cold, and repeat. The change from hot to cold water will make the flesh glow.

Give yourself a brisk rub down, use a tonic with an alcoholic content—nearly all bath lotions contain alcohol—and then slip into your undies and bath robe. You're going to do your exercises, like a good girl, whether you want to or not.

Stand tall, tummy in, hips tucked back and under, legs rigid, chest high, head well balanced, hands resting on the thighs.

Lift on the toes, raising the arms at the same time, taking a deep inhalation. Down on the heels, down with the hands, exhaling. Easy.

* * *

Local treatment consists of bathing the beaming beak with tepid water, never with hot or cold, and applying ointment of zinc oxide every night. This ointment is healing, will tend to tone the skin that is thin and sensitive.

Use your powder pad lightly and not often. Use a light powder preferably one without an oily base. Select your toilet soap with care. Sometimes a change of soap alone will make a cerise nose take on a more modest appearance, go white like a lily, stop being a rose.

More Hints For Lenten Meals

By ALICE LYNN BARRY

Are you in need of some more omelet and souffle recipes to pep up Lenten menus and to serve nobly at any time of year? Then hark to the dishes offered here.

Fluffy Omelet to the tune of six servings requires two tablespoons quick-cooking tapioca, three-fourths teaspoon salt, one-eighth teaspoon pepper, three-fourths cup milk, one tablespoon butter, four egg yolks beaten until thick and lemon colored, and four stiffly-beaten egg whites. Combine tapioca, salt, pepper and milk in top of double boiler. Place over rapidly-boiling water and cook over low flame for three minutes. Then bake in 350 degree F. oven for 15 minutes. Omelet is sufficiently cooked when a knife inserted comes out clean. Cut across at right angles to pan, being careful not to cut all way through. Fold carefully from handle to opposite side and serve on hot platter.

A Variation.

A variation on this omelet requires one tablespoon butter, one finely-chopped onion, one tablespoon flour, one cup tomato juice and pulp, one-half cup finely-chopped olives and the recipe for Fluffy Omelet. Melt butter, add onion and cook until golden brown. Add flour and mix well; then add tomatoes and cook for five minutes. Stir constantly. Add olives. Prepare fluffy omelet; turn out on hot platter. Place olive mixture between folded layers and around omelet. Serve at once, garnished with parsley and with whole and half stuffed olives.

Tuna and Celery Souffle takes four and one-half tablespoons quick-cooking tapioca, one and one-fourth teaspoons salt, one-eighth teaspoon pepper, one cup finely-cut celery, two cups milk, one cup flaked tuna fish, three egg yolks beaten until thick and lemon colored, and three stiffly-beaten egg whites. Combine tapioca, salt, pepper, celery in top of double boiler. Place over rapidly-boiling water and cook eight to ten minutes after water boils again, stirring frequently. Add fish. Cool slightly by beating eggs. Add egg yolks and mix well. Fold in egg whites. Turn into greased baking dish. Place in pan of hot water and bake in moderate oven (350 degrees F.) 50 to 60 minutes.

Salmon Souffle.

Salmon Souffle requires four and one-half tablespoons quick-cooking tapioca, one-half teaspoon salt, one-half teaspoon minced onion, one cup meat stock or one cup water and two bouillon cubes, one and three-fourths cups minced salmon, three egg yolks beaten until thick and lemon-colored, and three egg whites, stiffly beaten. Combine tapioca, salt, onion, milk and stock in top of double boiler. Place over rapidly-boiling water and cook for eight to ten minutes after water boils again, stirring frequently. Add Salmon. Cool slightly while beating eggs. Add egg yolks and mix well. Fold in egg whites. Turn into greased baking dish. Place in pan of hot water and bake in 350 degree F. oven for one hour or until firm.

The flavor of hot prune juice may be improved if a little spice and lemon juice are added. Add one tablespoon of lemon juice and a quarter of a teaspoon of cinnamon and cloves for each two cups of prune juice.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

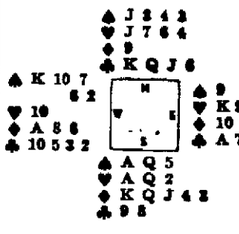
By Sheppard Barclay

"The Authority on Authorities"

A PASS IS A GAMBLE

At almost every stage of the game, whatever you do is to some extent a gamble, either a conservative, sound one or a long shot. Even a pass is a bet that this action will pay you bigger profits than some other course you might pursue.

There are even times when a pass is the extreme of a long shot, depending on the opponents to follow it with some kind of a bid which will give you a higher score than otherwise seems in sight.



(Dealer: South. East-West vulnerable.)

North and South had been having a very indifferent game up to the time that this deal came to them in a tournament. So North was itching to do something unusual which would produce a big top score for his side. South opened the bidding with 1-Diamond and West stuck his neck out with a very bad vulnerable overcall of 1-Spade. Here was North's chance. If he doubled this, no takeout by the vulnerable opponents could have saved them from a disaster.

North was bent on bigger game, however, and thought he could lure it by passing, which he did. When East also saw fit to pass and South bid 2-Diamonds, the opponents were off the dangerous limb. Of course, a better move by South would have been a takeout or informatory double, which North could have passed, but South didn't think of that.

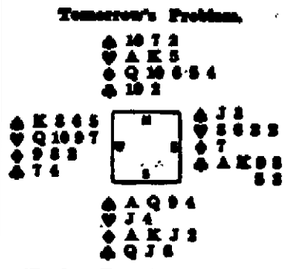
When the 2-Diamonds reached North, he felt sure that East would not let it drop there when his partner had made a vulnerable overcall.

So North decided to pass and wait for a chance to take a crack at some hoped-for bid. East passed, and South was in a terrible contract, going down two for a clear bottom score. Most North-South pairs bid naturally and made a No trump game on the deal.

SCAN CIVIL SERVICE

NEW YORK—(U.P.)—The "Civil Service Reminder Bureau" established at Hunter college to make information on government jobs more accessible to the student is believed to be the first of its kind in the country. For five cents, a student will be notifeid of any state, city, and federal civil service exam for which she may qualify.

Tomorrow's Problem.



(Dealer: East. Neither side vulnerable.)

After South bids 1-Spade to start the action on this deal, North 2-Diamonds, East 3-Clubs and South 3-Diamonds, how can North and South get soundly into 3-No trump?

HOROSCOPE

For Saturday, March 18.

Much enterprise and heightened initiative are read from the very interesting lunar configurations. New projects may be handled with high pressure and surprising innovations successfully applied, with elders, superiors and those in power standing by ready to offer substantial support and needed capital for promotion. The unique, audacious, romantic and bold contribute to make a happy and prosperous state of affairs.

Those whose birthday it is are assured a particularly interesting and eventful year, with much high pressure devoted to inaugurating new ideas, which will claim the interest, admiration and ready co-operation of those of prestige and influence. It is a time for pushing toward such objectives. The happy reactions contribute to the excitement and gratification of the private affiliations.

A child born on this day may have much initiative in the development of its unusual, novel or unique ideas or creations, with the industry, will and perseverance to attract support from high places. It should have a progressive and happy life.

A steak intended for grilling, if suspected of being tough should be well rubbed with olive oil an hour or so before using. Those who do not like oil may use melted butter, but oil is much more effective.

OWN BAY FINDS IRISH AS FAR APART AS EVER

Writer Finds It May Take a War to Make Factions Bury Their Hatchet.

EDITOR'S NOTE—William McGaffin, who went to Dublin and Belfast for a first-hand picture, tells here the situation in Ireland this St. Patrick's Day.

By WILLIAM McGAFFIN
AP Feature Service Writer

DUBLIN — Sure an' it's St. Patr-r-rick's day again—and the Protestant North and Catholic South of Ireland seem as far apart as ever as they pay homage to the saint each sect claims as its patron.

Curious as to just what are the chances for union of the two sections which are separated by political, economic and religious barriers, I visited Dublin and Belfast to sound out laymen and leaders.

I came away with the impression that generally there is little hope of them burying the shillalah in our time—unless there's a war.

De Valera an Exception.

An important exception to this view is taken by 56-year-old Eamon de Valera, the tall, friendly-voiced, New York-born prime minister—or taoiseach, as they call him—of the 26 southern counties that have cut loose from Britain.

But even de Valera, who for 20 years has worked unceasingly to make his dream of a united Eire (Gaelic for "Ireland") come true, hedged when I asked him if he were optimistic about the present chances. He said there was "no particular reason at present to be either unduly optimistic or pessimistic."

In Belfast I asked mild-mannered, 68-year-old J. M. Andrews, the deputy premier who was running the government in the absence of explosive-tongued Lord Craigavon, if there were any circumstances in which northern Ireland (or Ulster as it is called in the six northern counties still associated with Britain) would consider union with the south.

The gray-haired executive could not "visualize such a possibility, the difference in outlook between the two races in Ireland being so fundamental."

The Scottish Strain.

He was referring to the strong Scottish strain in the north which has come down from the seventeenth century when the English settled colonies of Scottish Protestants there to help subdue the rebellious Irish.

"Well, in any event," I continued, "are you optimistic over the possibility of the Irish question being settled eventually?"

He replied that it was already settled — "definitely" — so far as northern Ireland was concerned. "We in northern Ireland have no wish to meddle with the affairs of Eire; surely it is not too much to ask that they act in the same way towards us."

De Valera, however, believes that the last year "has revealed to all the dangers of the situation and the urgent need of finding a solution for it."

What You Get.

Which gives you a nice deadlock.

Well, how could a war break it?

The answer it, de Valera might be able to make Britain agree to union as the price of the co-operation which would be urgently necessary to Britain's security.

De Valera himself is naturally cautious when you question him on this point.

"It is of course proved that Britain would be safer with a united and free Ireland at her side. . . . A free Ireland would of course never allow herself to be used as a base for enemy attack against Britain."

In the meantime, North and South are preparing defense programs. Britian is pushing a $5,000,000 program for improving barracks and flying facilities in North Ireland. Eire has earmarked $16,250,000 for its 1939 preparedness program, almost twice last year's total.

Economic Gains Noted.

De Valera and Lord Craigavon are both determined men who have bolstered their determination by thumping successes at the polls in the past year.

De Valera also improved southern Ireland's economic position considerably by signing the trade treaty with Britain last April 25, ending a five-year economic war which had been especially disastrous for the farmers.

Northern Ireland ended the year with 94,783 out of her 1,279,753 people wholly or partially unemployed. Britain, however, is known to be giving her assistance to offset "losses under the Anglo-southern Ireland trade pact."

On the credit side the north lists the benefit from the Anglo-American trade treaty "already apparent in our linen industry."

In affairs political, several other significant things have cropped up in the last year.

The New Constitution.

First, there is the new constitution which went into effect in southern Ireland at the turn of the year and the new president, Dr. Douglas Hyde, who was elected unanimously in May.

The south feels that these have consolidated their position.

Then there are the embarrassing series of bombings in the north and in England.

Goal of the illegal Irish Republican army, supposedly behind the campaign, is to "blast England out of Ireland." But the terrorists have been repudiated and both sections of Ireland are taking stern measures against them.

Map Shows Divisions of Ireland

Here's the map of Ireland, showing how its territory is divided between two stubborn factions. The three counties of Donegal, Cavan and Monaghan, though part of Ulster, geographically, throw in their lot with the people of Eire.

Rubber Ears and Noses Found to Be Very Durable

CHICAGO—(INS)—If your nose or ears are uncomfortable, take 'em off.

You can if you have the variety manufactured by Dr. Sidney J. Pollock, Chicago dentist. The accessories are manufactured by Dr. Pollock from liquid latex (rubber), and are tinted to match your skin, are washable and "very durable," he says. He exhibited his products before the Chicago Dental society convention at the Stevens hotel.

Dr. Pollock started his unique manufacturing enterprise four years ago when he saw a man horribly burned in an automobile accident. Plastic surgeons admitted they were unable to help the victim, so the doctor tried his hand. He only does his work when plastic surgery fails.

In making a nose or an ear, he makes an impression of the patient's entire face. Then he fashions a wax pattern of the part to be replaced, after which he makes a stone mold, and pours the liquid latex into it. The finished nose or ear is held in place by spirit gum.

WILSON'S TENDER EXTRA MILD Certified SMOKED HAM
Cook Before Eating
What a satisfaction it is to buy smoked ham that has just the right flavor—not too sharp, not too mild—but just perfect! You'll be delighted, too, with its succulent tenderness that makes each slice a pleasure to serve and a joy to eat. Look for the Orange wrapper.
WHY NOT BUY A WHOLE HAM?
In the long run it is more economical to buy a whole ham. Your dealer will cut two or three slices from the center to fry or broil. Bake the butt half. The other half will make an appetizing Ham and Vegetable Dinner. (See recipe)
HAM AND VEGETABLE DINNER RECIPE
Barely cover ham shank with warm water. Simmer 30 minutes to pound. Add ½ pint green beans broken in small pieces 45 minutes before ham is done. 20 minutes later add four medium potatoes cut in half, two carrots quartered lengthwise, four small onions cut in half, and a small cabbage cored and quartered. Salt to taste. When vegetables are tender, remove skin from ham shank. Place ham on platter with vegetables. Serves four.

CONVICT'S DAUGHTER + + +

By RUTH RAY KANE

(Copyright, 1939.)

CHAPTER XXII.

"You look terrible, Jim, when you're mad," she brought out, her mind still going over the scene they had just quitted. "So fierce and—mean. I hope you never get mad at me that way."

"Mad at you, girl? I can't ever get mad at you. Don't you know that? You're too little and too—sweet. Besides, you'll be Mrs. Claridge! Do you realize that? Who could be mad at Mrs. Claridge? Especially Mrs. James Claridge!"

Mrs. Claridge! The name brought a flush to Lona's cheeks and a warmth to her whole being that stayed with her even when she had sent Jim on his way back to Mrs. Peterman's, and had gone up to her own room to make her preparations.

* * *

Preparations for her wedding. In a few hours she would be Mrs. James Claridge! She said the name over to herself as she dressed for the second time that day in the blue outfit and pushed the wave into her brown hair with extra care. Mrs. James Claridge—Lona Claridge. It seemed to take away from her, somehow, all the troubles that had been hers as Lona Ackerman. As if that unhappy, distracted girl was about to vanish forever.

She looked ridiculously young when she stood before her mirror, finally, ready down to the last button on the blue gloves. Her face was still flushed and her eyes were bright. She hesitated for a moment, trembling, as the telephone, announcing that Jim was waiting for her below, sent out its fateful jingle. She felt as if she were setting out for a new, unknown world as she picked up her suitcase and locked the door behind her for the last time.

* * *

IT WOULD BE an odd sort of wedding, Lona thought, as she sat beside Jim, and watched his strong hands on the wheel of the rented car he was driving. No music, no audience of hushed friends, no flowers. Just herself and Jim. She wondered, suddenly, if he had remembered the ring, and looked at his lean profile against the falling twilight as he threaded his way through traffic out toward the open road. She wanted to ask him about it but, somehow, the words wouldn't come out. She was feeling shy and uneasy.

"Where are we going, Jim?" she asked, suddenly, as he brought the car to a stop at a busy corner. Her heart skipped a beat as he opened the door on his side, and she looked about her at the neighboring buildings. No church was visible, and she had a ridiculous feeling of reprieve.

He disappeared around the next corner and was back again almost before she realized he was gone. In his arms he carried—looking ludicrous against his dark suit and causing passersby to smile—an unwrapped bouquet of red roses. Tiny, fragrant buds of the sort Lona loved.

"For the bride!" he said, bowing gravely as he handed them to her.

"Oh, Jim!" She buried her face in the fragrant blossoms heedless of the thorns they might conceal. "How did you know I was wanting flowers?"

"Every bride must have flowers," he told her, grinning and pleased with himself, as he slipped back behind the wheel.

* * *

They rode silently after that, the fragrance of the flowers surrounding them with an aura of sweetness. Out in the open country, away from the bustle of the city, with its ever clanging traffic, the supper-time shadows were lengthening peacefully. It was good, riding along like this, Lona thought. Just she and Jim together, the breeze in their faces. She could have gone on and on.

It was before a rambling country parsonage, an hour's drive from the city, that Jim drew up finally, and stopped. With an air of finality he snapped off the throbbing engine and turned to her in the sudden, pregnant silence.

"We're here, girl," he said, softly, and something in his brown eyes made her catch her breath.

"Yes, we're—here," she heard herself repeating.

For a moment he pressed her hand silently. "Guess it's up to me to see if there's anybody home," he said, then, and heaved his long body from the car. "You wait."

He, too, was a little embarrassed as he went up the long, flower-bordered walk and onto the run-down porch, putting his foot down easy in an absurd effort to be quiet. In another minute he was coming back, grinning a little sheepishly.

"You're to come in," he told her without meeting her eyes.

The roses in her arms seemed to double in fragrance as she walked beside him. Like going up a church aisle, it was, her steps measuring themselves with his, and a smiling white-haired man with a book in his hand holding open the screen door for them.

The preacher had called in his wife and a perspiring daughter from their kitchen work to be witnesses, and they greeted Lona with knowing looks, exclaiming over her flowers. The preacher clearer his throat as he leafed through his book, and then his voice came out deep and heavy, filling the silenced parlor.

"I do," Lona heard herself repeating, fatefully. Her voice seemed to stick in her throat and she could only whisper. Jim, too, seemed to be having trouble getting the words out.

"With this ring . . ." the preacher was saying, and a sudden overwhelming fear gripped Lona. Had he forgotten? . . . He fumbled for an agonizing moment in his pocket, then, with a triumphant glance at her, produced a thumbsized box. The gleaming circlet was set with tiny diamonds that sparkled as the minister held it up. On her finger it felt cold and hard and alien; she was conscious of it when the minister had pronounced his last solemn "Amen!" and Jim was bending over her, kissing her with shy lips.

"It's done, girl," he whispered to her in that brief instant before he surrendered her to the congratulations of the preacher and his womenfolk.

"Yes, it's done," she heard herself repeating a little stupidly, as if it were hard to believe.

* * *

Back outside, in the car, shyness seemed to possess them both. To hide it, Jim took refuge in the commonplace.

"Do you realize we've had no dinner?" he asked, starting the engine. "I'm hungry!"

"And so am I!" Lona echoed. Then, her eyes meeting his, they both laughed. "You've married a hungry woman, Jim," she told him. "It's going to keep you busy the rest of your life feeding me."

"I noticed an inn back down the road a ways when we came through. There's a sign says chicken. How about that for a wedding supper?" He was already turning the car in the minister's drive.

"It would be wonderful, Jim," Lona heard herself assuring him. Anything he wanted to do would be wonderful, she was thinking, in a sudden accession of tenderness and gratitude. Would it be like this always, she wondered, sitting beside him in the gathering dusk. To be taken care of like this, to have someone upon whom to lean, someone she could trust to make decisions. After what she had been through, it was almost too much to ask of life!

The inn, when they entered it, was a homey little place, its windows hung with crisp curtains, checked tablecloths on its tables. It made Lona think of the home she would like to have and of which she had, as yet, scarcely dared to think.

"It'll be fun, hunting a—a house," she brought out, shyly, her eyes meeting Jim's across the table as they waited for the farm girl waitress to serve them.

"A house!" He looked at her with longing in his brown eyes. "Do you mean you're really going to—to cook, and things like that? Keep house—"

"Why, of course I am, Jim! What did you think we were going to do?"

"I—I didn't know. I guess I thought—are you going to go house hunting right away?" He was like a small boy being promised a feast.

"Tomorrow," she promised, and then blushed, her eyes falling before the look that leaped into his. Tomorrow! She would be a different girl by then, she knew suddenly. Not a girl at all, but a woman. She swallowed back a lump that came to her throat and applied herself to the plate of chicken and biscuits the waitress set before her, without daring to look up.

* * *

"It's been just a month since I found you, girl. Do you realize that?" His voice was tender.

"Just a month." She looked at him, then. "Oh, Jim, what if you hadn't! What if somebody else had come across me in the park that night? Someone who wasn't—like you?" She broke off, shivering.

"Don't girl. Don't think of it!" The hand closed over hers firmly, warm and comforting. "I DID find you! And we're going to be together now and for a long time! As long as you want me."

As long as she wanted him! She kept thinking of that promise in the hours that followed. He was like a boy, she thought, as she lingered with him over the abundant meal and watched him light up a lazy cigaret in the lamp-lit dusk. A boy who wanted to be loved and wasn't quite sure he deserved it. As long as she wanted him, he had said. Not as long as he wanted her, as most men would have put it.
